Soviet ties charged

FBI arrests alleged spies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI arrested two alleged spies for the Soviet Union Friday and accused them of passing defense secrets to a Russian connection at the Soviet U.N. mission.

Just three weeks before the joint spaceflight symbolizing U.S.-Soviet detente, the FBI made its first attempt in two years to roll up a Soviet spy network by arresting these men at their homes in New York City and the Washington, D.C., suburb of Rockville, Md.

—Sahag K. Dedeyan, 41, of Rockville, a scholarly naturalized U.S. citizen from Lebanon allegedly used by the Soviets as the "inside man." He is a professional defense expert with a top secret clearance who worked on government-funded defense studies. He allegedly knew that a Russian agent photographed secret NATO contingency plans he had written and failed to report this to authorities.

—Sarkis O. Paskalian, 36, a Manhattan jeweler, a permanent resident alien from Lebanon and the alleged "outside man." The FBI said Paskalian is a Soviet KGB intelligence agent who made the contact with Dedeyan, photographed the secret documents and gave them to Russian contacts at the U.N. mission in New York.

FBI spokesmen said they assumed the illegal photographs of the Dedeyan document — "Vulnerability Analysis: U.S. reinforcement of NATO" — had actually gone to Moscow but conceded, "We have no proof."

The three alleged Soviet contact men were also named as unindicted co-conspirators, but all three have returned to Moscow.

They were identified as Petros Petrosyan, Eduard B. Charchyan and Abdulkhalik M. Gadzhiev, all former officials of the Soviet U.N. Mission.

U.S. attorneys in Brooklyn, N.Y., charged Paskalian with conspiracy to gather classified national defense information to aid a foreign country. If convicted, he could face maximum penalties of life in prison or death.

In Baltimore, U.S. attorneys charged Dedeyan with failing to report illegal photographing of national defense information. He was held on $20,000 bail.

FBI spokesmen said agents had been watching the Paskalian ring for four years, but the timing of the arrests might prove an embarrassment to U.S.-Soviet plans promoting detente.

U.S. and Soviet spacemen are scheduled to blast off July 15 for a historic link-up mission in space.

Compromise clears path for veto-proof housing bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., and the administration compromised Friday, enabling the Senate to pass a middle-income housing bill providing up to $10 billion in subsidized home mortgages.

President Ford was expected to sign the measure into law as a substitute for the big Democratic housing bill he successfully vetoed Tuesday. The House failed by 16 votes to override the veto Wednesday.

Carla Hills, secretary of housing and urban development, promised that "meaningful amounts" of the $10 billion would be released over the next 12 months to stimulate activity in a housing industry suffering depression-level unemployment.

The compromise between Proxmire and HUD enabled the Senate to pass the bill by voice vote and send it to the White House.

At issue was how many "points" homebuyers could be charged for getting mortgage loans at the attractive 7.5 per cent interest rate stipulated in the legislation.

A "point" — a form of pre-paid interest almost always paid by the homebuyer — represents 1 per cent of the value of a mortgage.

On a $30,000 mortgage, each point he is charged costs the homebuyer $300.

With $10 billion worth of mortgages potentially to be issued, the dispute involved hundreds of millions of dollars in profits for mortgage lenders.

Proxmire's original bill limited fees and points on mortgages issued under the program to 2 per cent.

The House, in passing the bill Thursday, dropped the limitation.

Proxmire said he would not let the bill leave the Senate unless the limitation were reinstated.

Ford suggests long clean-exhaust delay

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford Friday recommended an even more sweeping delay in automobile exhaust clean up rules than the Environmental Protection Agency and his own administration had proposed just a few months ago.

Ford said Congress should freeze exhaust rules where they are right now through the 1981 model year to avoid inflationary increases in the costs of cars and to provide automobiles which will have a 40 per cent improvement in fuel economy within four years.

The EPA had earlier recommended keeping the rules at where they are right now through only 1979, with a slightly tougher standard for cars turned out in 1980 and 1981. And in January, Ford had recommended revisions of the Clean Air Act that did not even go that far.

The recommendation came despite a report from the National Academy of Sciences earlier this month which said industry could meet the timetable as it currently exists under the law. It said changes in the standards were not justified and that they should be left alone for health reasons.

Agents on warpath after killer Indians

OGLALA, S.D. (UPI) — Rifle-packing federal agents in battle dress fanned through the rolling Pine Ridge Indian Reservation Friday in a gully-by-gully, house-by-house hunt for the killers of two FBI agents cut down in what the FBI called a "prepared ambush."

The two agents died in a hail of rifle and shotgun fire Thursday as they arrived at a bunker-fortified home to serve an arrest warrant on a fugitive and, the FBI said, found an estimated 20 to 30 Indians lying in wait for them.

One Indian—who was wearing a jacket taken from one of the dead agents—died in a gun battle that erupted when dozens of FBI and Bureau of Indian Affairs police reinforcements rushed to the isolated cement house in woods near this Oglala Sioux hamlet.

Both the FBI and the office of Gov. Richard Kneip said the slain agents were ambushed as they stepped out of their car.

"The Indians had bunkers—trenches," an FBI spokesman said. "For all purposes, it was a prepared ambush."

President Ford asked the Justice Department to keep him informed of developments. A White House spokesman said the President was "saddened by the tragic loss of life and expects a full investigation and prosecution" of any persons charged in connection with the shootings.

An airplane served as a spotter for ground parties of FBI and BIA agents as they searched the grassy, gully-slashed hills of the 3,000-square-mile reservation where American Indian Movement members and sympathizers took over the hamlet of Wounded Knee by armed force for 73 days in 1973.

last ditch effort ... to permit the auto industry to keep on polluting."

"If top administration figures including President Ford had come out of air conditioned cars and offices during the two day pollution alert in Washington this week and breathed the polluted air all day as less privileged citizens must, they would not have made this health-injurious recommendation to Congress."

Jersey income tax killed

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — The New Jersey Senate Friday defeated a 1.5 to 6 per cent personal income tax after a dramatic struggle with Gov. Brendan T. Byrne in the worst financial crisis in state history.

The Senate, with a nine-year reputation as the burial ground of income taxes, recorded the decisive vote after more than four hours of heated debate in which the senators who Byrne had been counting on rose one by one to denounce the tax package.

The vote was 17 for and 21 against, with 21 votes needed for passage.

As the debate raged on, anti-tax senators grew bitter at Byrne. They accused the governor of forcing them into a corner with threats that the state would plunge into financial disaster if they rejected his tax.

Stroudsburg teachers look to state for job answers

STROUDSBURG — "Right now, we don't know where we legally stand," said William E. Shearer, president of the Stroudsburg Area Teachers Assn. (SATA) after the district board of education laid off 10 teachers in cutting its budget Friday.

"We are going to have to talk with out state people," said Shearer, referring to the state teachers' union, the Pennsylvania State Education Assn.

He said a meeting of SATA's executive board was called Friday night to determine how the union will react to the layoffs.

"We're going to see what we can do to save the programs and save the teachers," he said.

To trim a proposed $5.9 million budget for next year by about $200,000, the board laid off 10 music, art and foreign language teachers, eliminated in-school suspension programs and reduced music, art and foreign language programs.

Shearer would not commit the association to challenging the layoffs until he consulted the executive board.

Bruce Anderson, chairman of the Community Advisory Committee on Education, said his group's efforts to trim the budget paid off.

"In the short time we have been organized, we feel we did have a significant impact on the board's budgetary decisions," said Anderson, who's committee has questioned the board's purchase of sneakers and its contribution to the Monroe County Area Vocational-Technical School and Colonial Northampton Intermediate Unit 20.

"We certainly are going to stay with a continuing review of the budget and other school matters," he continued.

"In the future, we hope to see the school board moving from an educational establishment to one more representative of the parents and other citizens."

The board has used one of the committee's suggestions. In the new budget, it cut $52,000 from its contribution to the Vo-Tech school and Unit 20. Board President Lloyd E. Manter said previously the district's business office miscalculated that budget category by accident.

Manter said Friday, before the board meeting to adopt the 1975-76 budget of $5.7 million, that the board will act on another of the committee's suggestions.

Nixon testifies on W'gate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former President Richard M. Nixon was questioned under oath by Watergate prosecutors and grand jurors for 11 hours this week, it was disclosed Friday.

What Nixon said was kept secret. Presumably his testimony was not protected by the pardon he received from President Ford and he is liable for its truthfulness. It was the first time Nixon had testified about the scandal that drove him from office.

The disclosure of the examination was made in a two-page stipulation filed in U.S. district court by Special Prosecutor Henry S. Ruth Jr. and Nixon's lawyer, Herbert J. Miller Jr., and signed by U.S. district Judge George L. Hart Jr.

It said Nixon was examined Monday and Tuesday at the Coast Guard's San Mateo Loran station adjoining his San Clemente, Calif., estate and that several prosecutors and two grand jurors took part.

Miller said in a two-page statement to reporters that Nixon's doctors were consulted before the interviews. He said the examination "covered a wide range of subjects."

The interviews took place on the third anniversary of Nixon's "smoking gun" talk with his former chief of staff H.R. Haldeman — the disclosure of which led to his resignation within days last August.

The transcript was made a part of the Watergate grand jury's minutes, which are secret.

Miller said the prosecutors expressed a desire for Nixon's testimony, although the former president submitted to the examination voluntarily and without subpoena. The stipulation said Nixon wanted the fact of the proceeding made public because of inquiries made about it.

Nixon was one of about 20 unindicted co-conspirators in the Watergate cover-up, although prosecutors said later he would have been indicted had he not been President when the indictments were handed down March 1, 1974.

Ford urges Israel to 'bend' more

WASHINGTON (U.P.I.) — President Ford personally asked Israel Friday to consider making greater concessions to Arab states to get Middle East peace talks going again, diplomatic sources said.

They said Ford made the request to Israeli Ambassador Simcha Dinitz in an 11 minute White House meeting Friday morning. The envoy told Ford he would relay the request to Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin in Jerusalem.

Ford called in Dinitz to make the request and to underscore U.S. belief that perhaps the Israelis must be prepared to consider more extensive bilateral concessions in order for Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to resume the Israeli-Egyptian negotiations that collapsed in March, the sources said.

Kissinger attended the Oval Office meeting, which lasted from 9:58 a.m. to 10:09 a.m. The Israeli Ambassador held at least two other and separate meetings with Kissinger and Joseph L. Sisco, undersecretary of state for political affairs, on Israel's diplomatic stance.

The diplomatic sources said Israel was loath to concede much now just for the sake of securing a temporary peace of one, two, three or four years. They said the Israelis have told the Americans that if they bartered away too much for peace now, they would have nothing with which to bargain at the end of a temporary peace.

The diplomats said Ford did not pressure Dinitz. They said his request was made in the cordial and friendly mood traditional to U.S.-Israeli relations which however have grown thornier following the March collapse of the Jerusalem-Cairo mediation, a collapse for which Ford and Kissinger have not found the Israelis blameless.

Ford ordered a policy reassessment following the collapse in March of Kissinger's attempt to mediate an interim Israeli-Egyptian peace settlement.

Education aid bill next veto?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate, acting just before the start of its Independence Day recess, Friday approved a $7.6 billion appropriation for aid to education — still another measure President Ford may veto.

The vote was 64 to 12 on this, the first Fiscal 1976 money bill the Senate has approved so far this year.

The amount is $1.5 billion higher than the administration budget request and $340 million above the House version with which it will have to be reconciled. The Senate bill also carries $753 million more than was spent on identical programs during the fiscal year just coming to a close.

The legislation carries funds for assistance to elementary education, emergency school needs, education for the handicapped, vocational education and so-called "impacted areas."

Caspar Weinberger, the outgoing secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, said he will urge the President to reject any measure carrying such a substantial increase.

In a letter to Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott, Weinberger said he had "no other course of action" but to urge that Ford veto the Senate bill on grounds it is too expensive.

Weinberger's chief complaint concerned $725 million slated for impacted areas — school districts glutted with children of federal employees and the military.

Led by beef cost record

Food prices leap again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Continuing increases in hog and cattle prices, which have helped push retail beef prices to a new record, raised the average of all raw farm commodity prices 2 per cent in the month ended June 15, the Agriculture Department reported Friday.

The increase — the third successive monthly gain in farm prices — left the average 10 per cent above a year earlier. The farm price index had risen 4 per cent in April and 5 per cent in May after declining for five months.

The department's monthly price report said higher potato, tomato, cantaloupe and peach prices also contributed to the June increase. Those gains were partly offset by lower prices for crops including wheat, barley and grapefruit.

The report underscored earlier forecasts that retail food prices would continue creeping up until the summer, largely on the strength of higher meat prices. Consumer costs for some other foods, including bakery products and sugar, have been declining.

Government economists predict, however, that if 1975 harvests are big, retail food prices will level off later in the year and the overall 1975 food price average may be only 6-8 per cent above 1974 compared with a 14.5 per cent rise last year.

The price report said beef cattle prices averaged $38.50 hundredweight in mid-June, up $2 from a month earlier and $5.90 from a year earlier. Prices for steers and heifers, the type of cattle which furnish most supermarket beef, averaged $42.60, up $8.30 from a year earlier.

Hog prices, at $47.30 per hundredweight, were up $2.20 from May and nearly double the year-ago level. All meat animals combined rose 4 per cent during the month and were 34 per cent above a year earlier.

Farmers who grow grains, however, suffered some setbacks. Prices for wheat and other food grains slumped 13 per cent during the month and were 23 per cent below.

Aluminum firm defies President, raises prices

By United Press International

Defying Ford administration "jaw boning," the nation's largest aluminum company Friday hiked prices an average 2.3 per cent. Prices also were raised on tires and petroleum products.

The rash of price increases comes less than a week after President Ford proudly noted that administration economic policies had cut inflation in half.

The President's Council on Wage and Price Stability immediately said it was seriously concerned about the higher aluminum prices and ordered justification of the action.

The Aluminum Co. of America, the largest aluminum manufacturer, said the higher prices would be applied to 60 per cent of its products effective July 7. It could result in higher prices for many consumer products, including automobiles, houses and home appliances.

Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. increased prices an average of 4.9 per cent on most of its tires effective Tuesday. Uniroyal already had announced a similar hike. And Texaco raised propane gas prices 1 cent a gallon.

Earlier this week, Kaiser Aluminum raised its prices 2.7 per cent.

Wage and Price Council Director Albert Rees said the council was "seriously concerned" about the Alcoa and Kaiser price hikes, and he demanded a "complete explanation and justification." He also served notice to other aluminum companies that their pricing moves would be carefully watched.

The council has no power to order price rollbacks, but it can — and has — used public pressure.

In an apparent response to the government, Alcoa said the increase was "fully justified on the basis of continuing cost increases."

The added cost of aluminum could boost the price of a variety of consumer products.

What's news

Kids not just 'jawing'

NEWARK — Newark city officials remain baffled but, yes, five baby sharks did come out of an open fire hydrant while several children were playing in the spray of water. The city's health and welfare director, James Buford verified that the five gray-backed fish were indeed dead baby sharks that 12-year-old Rahima Hoffman and her friends saw coming out of the hydrant. "I just can't tell you how they got there," Buford said. His office is now investigating how sharks got into the city's water supply, if they did. Daniel N. Berardinelli, the chief municipal water engineer, says he is convinced the whole thing is a prank. Berardinelli said there is no way sharks could survive in Newark's water system. He said sharks cannot live outside salt water and the turbulence of the city water lines would destroy such fish.

U.S. forfeits agencies to Laos

VIENTIANE — The United States turned over control of all USAID properties in Laos to the Communist-controlled Laotian government because it was impossible to complete a formal accord by the June 30 deadline set by Vientiane authorities, officials said Friday. Negotiations between American and Laotian government officials on closing down the U.S. Agency for International Development operations had been at a standstill in recent days, apparently because of the absence from Vientiane of Deputy Prime Minister Phoumi Vongvichit, senior representative of the Communist Pathet Lao in the coalition government. USAID programs in Laos were phased out because of the demands of leftist students and workers in the wake of the Communist victories in Cambodia and Viet Nam.

Senate protects medicaid eligibility

WASHINGTON — The Senate passed and sent to the White House Friday legislation to protect some 50,000 Americans from losing their Medicaid eligibility next week. The bill, approved by voice vote, would make permanent a provision of law under which the 20 per cent hike in Social Security benefits granted in 1972 is not counted as income in determining eligibility for Medicaid benefits. If the exemption was allowed to expire June 30 as current law provides, an estimated 50,000 persons — most of them aged, blind and disabled — would be stricken from the rolls of those eligible for government subsidized medical care.

Health bill ready for veto

WASHINGTON — Congressional conferees approved a $2 billion health services and nurse training bill certain to be vetoed by President Ford, congressional aides said Friday. The report on the bill will not be filed with the House and Senate until after the congressional recess next month. But the administration expressed strong opposition to the legislation in a letter sent Tuesday by HEW Secretary Caspar Weinberger to Rep. Harley Staggers, D-W.Va., chairman of the House Commerce Committee. "The President has said he will veto proposals that would authorize new spending except for energy," Weinberger wrote.

SLA 'soldiers' get life terms

OAKLAND, Calif. — Calling the jurors that convicted them "white fools," two Symbionese Liberation Army soldiers were sentenced Friday to life in prison for the cyanide bullet murder of Oakland Schools Superintendent Marcus Foster. Joseph Remiro, 28, and Russell Little, 25, were convicted of the murder of Foster, a popular black educator, and of seriously wounding his white assistant Robert Blackburn outside the Oakland school administration building on the night of Nov. 6, 1973. The jury deliberated for 11 days before reaching a verdict. They also were sentenced to six months to 20 years for the attempted murder of Blackburn. The murder was the first known act of the SLA, which later gained nationwide notoriety when it kidnaped Patricia Hearst.

Indians are people, too

BOGOTA, Colombia — The Colombian Supreme Court has confirmed maximum jail terms of 24 years each for six cowboys who pleaded innocent to 16 charges of murder because they "didn't know it was a crime to kill Indians." The court dealt a severe rebuke to the cowboys' lawyer for having the audacity to appeal the sentence. The Supreme Court opinion, formulated by Justice Federico Estrada and signed by the other judges Thursday, ends one of the most notorious cases in Colombian jurisdiction. The six cowboys invited a group of Indians from the nomadic Cuba tribe to a Christmas dinner in 1967, wine and dined them and then massacred 16 of them with guns and knives, apparently for kicks. The genocide took place near la Rubiera in Colombia's eastern plains. At their first trial in Villavicencio, the center of the region, the cowboys were acquitted when they said they didn't know it was a crime to kill Indians.

Gregory Peck's son a suicide

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — Gregory Peck's 30-year-old son, Jonathan, was listed a suicide Friday, dead of a single gunshot wound to the head. Peck, a former newsman for United Press International and a reporter for television station KCOY in the nearby community of Santa Maria, was found dead in his apartment Thursday by a friend. Friends said his father was flying to California from Europe. Santa Barbara police found no suicide notes.

Would cut national bills

Senate unit votes no-fault

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Commerce Committee approved a national no-fault automobile insurance bill Friday which, backers said, would cut drivers' insurance costs by $1 billion a year.

Under the bill, persons injured in auto accidents would automatically be compensated for their injuries by their own insurance policy. There would be no need to determine — sometimes through long and costly lawsuits — who was at fault before his insurance company paid damages.

Proponents said the threat of a filibuster exists, but they were more optimistic of enacting a bill this year than in 1972, when a comparable measure was killed by a 48-47 vote, or in 1974, when the Senate passed a bill 53-42 but the House failed to take it up.

Consumer groups have campaigned for such a law. The administration opposes it. Trial lawyers who, according to Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, collect $1.8 billion a year in fees in automobile injury litigation, oppose the measure.

The bill would lay down federal standards which state laws would have to meet within four years. If the states did not act, an alternative federal no-fault program would automatically go into effect.

Sixteen states now have no-fault laws.

The Senate bill would require injured persons to accept stipulated payments for their injuries, barring them from suing for more.

Backers argue funds insurance companies now spend in such litigation could instead go to accident victims.

State Farm, the nation's largest auto insurance company and a backer of no-fault, estimated the law's enactment would make possible a 10 per cent reduction in the $11 billion motorists now pay for personal injury insurance.

Indira tells India it's been quiet

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi told the Indian people Friday that except for some strikes and stoning in Gujarat state "the whole nation has been quiet" since her proclamation of a state of emergency and the mass arrests of her political opponents.

She also apologized, in a five-minute speech broadcast live by All-India Radio, for the strict press censorship imposed under the decree imposed Thursday, which she said "I am sure will be lifted soon."

A government spokesman said the number of persons arrested under the decree rose by 200 Friday, bringing the total of those jailed so far to nearly 1,000 across the country. Opposition sources put the figure at nearer 3,500.

Mrs. Gandhi said all persons arrested under the decree, many of whom had demanded her resignation because of election frauds, "have been treated well, I can assure you."

It was her first speech to the nation since Thursday morning when she announced the state of emergency, unprecedented in the peacetime history of India since it gained independence 28 years ago.

Strict censorship of domestic and foreign press, legally imposed by law through an order of the emergency decree, was in effect in this country of 600 million which calls itself as the world's most populous democracy.

The government cut communications between India and the rest of the world for about eight hours after the emergency proclamation but restored them Friday. A. R. Baji, the government's chief information spokesman, called in foreign correspondents and told them they would have to submit their dispatches to censorship before communications were restored.

(The first dispatch submitted by Vanzi went through four censors. Each one deleted parts of it, leaving only a portion of the original, Vanzi reported, even to the point of deleting a paragraph saying that the capital of New Delhi was calm.)

Only one of New Delhi's 14 daily newspapers published Friday because of electrical power failures at the other plants. A government spokesman said "I don't know whether it was coincidental or not."

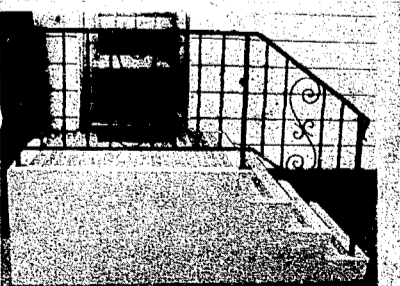

"I have always been against press censorship of any sort," the 58-year-old Mrs. Gandhi said in the broadcast.

Tip a glass in Coolbaugh, swallow in Tobyhanna

By RUTH VINCE
Pocono Record Reporter
POCONO SUMMIT — When John and Mary DeSanto of Pocono Summit bought a restaurant and bar in 1938, little did they know that for the next 20 years they wouldn't be sure just where they lived, where they should pay taxes, or vote.

DeSanto's restaurant and bar and his home straddled the boundary line of Tobyhanna and Coolbaugh Townships.

DeSanto chose to live in Tobyhanna Township and pay taxes there. However Coolbaugh Township Supervisors didn't like not receiving revenue from the DeSanto property and his liquor license.

It took the ruling of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, in 1958, to end the 20 year old question.

The argument raged for many years over where DeSanto legally lived.

"No one in the two townships or county wanted to get involved because they didn't want to go to the expense of having a survey made," DeSanto said.

"Russell Mervine of Stroudsburg, was my attorney. I told him I didn't want to die without knowing where I lived."

DeSanto wouldn't give up his right to vote and registered in both townships.

"During the time it took the matter to be resolved I would vote one year in Tobyhanna and the next in Coolbaugh," DeSanto remarked.

Before the Supreme Court ruling, the local court ruled taxes be paid to Coolbaugh. Tobyhanna Township supervisors and its school district took objection to this, appealed to the State Supreme Court, there ruling was in favor of Coolbaugh.

Court delay
Supreme Court Justice Herbert B. Cohen's decision that DeSanto was a resident of Coolbaugh was upheld by the late Judge Samuel Shull of Monroe County.

During the time the case was held up in court no taxes were paid to either township.

"They couldn't assess me while the case was being prolonged," DeSanto said. "I would have the same assessment and I put $411.50 in escrow, yearly."

The accumulated figure,

Johnnie's Pocono Summit Inn is everywhere at once.

after the dispute was resolved, according to records in the Monroe County Prothonotary office, was $4,678.50.

Although DeSanto is officially a resident of Coolbaugh Johnnie's Pocono Summit Inn is still in both townships.

The bar runs catercornered through both townships, with the bartender serving from one township to the other. The dining area is in Tobyhanna township.

DeSanto recalls, in 1968, he had about 35 lawyers and one judge from Monroe County dining at the Inn.

"I asked them if they enjoyed their dinner in Tobyhanna Township, and if anyone had to use the men's room they would have to go to Coolbaugh," he laughed.

"I guess they thought I was crazy," he added. "They were not aware of the place being in two townships."

DeSanto recalls many amusing incidents from the time he first started in business with 35 cents and two cases of beer.

"The first day I was open I didn't have one customer," he said. "I drank one bottle of beer."

"The second day, I drank two bottles and Mary told me I had better stop or there wouldn't be any beer to sell when we did get customers."

First sale
"I remember selling the first bottle of beer. We didn't have change for the quarter the man paid. I sent Mary out the backdoor to the store to get the change."

"She told me to keep talking until she returned," he laughed.

"He kept talking," Mary said. "And he hasn't stopped since."

"When you have no money and have bills to pay, you have to talk to make money," DeSanto said.

"When we moved here we rented the place from Effie Mervine. She had a for sale sign up, but we couldn't afford to buy," he explained.

"We'd take the sign down and she would put it back up. Then we would take it down for another month until we finally bought the place," he laughed.

"It needed a lot of fixing up," he said. "Mary and I did all the work. We worked 20 hours a day, seven days a week."

"Sunday's we charged for pretzels and potato chips but not for the beer. We closed on Sunday's pretty quick when we found out it was against the law to give beer away."

The DeSanto's had a night club in the beginning. They hired a five-piece band for $15, sold cokes for five cents, and beer for 10 cents.

"Then I found out I was in the hole for $200 on my income tax," DeSanto remarked.

"I was told to get to work, throw the band out and I would show a profit, that's when I really went into the food business."

From their first sandwich, which was lettuce and tomato, Johnnie's Pocono Summit Inn has become one of the restaurants well known for excellent cuisine.

"The lettuce and tomato came from our garden," Mary said. "We also had a 15 cent jar of mayonnaise."

"We served the freshest eggs in the area," DeSanto added. "One morning we had only one egg left. A customer wanted eggs for his breakfast, so I went to the chicken house and that man had eggs in two minutes. That's really fresh eggs."

"I never knew how to cook and no one showed me," DeSanto said. "I guess I experimented on my customers for years until I got better," he laughed.

Not only did DeSanto experiment on his customers, he had some believing he had a chef in the early years.

"Once when a man came in and ordered soup and a ham on rye, I called back to the kitchen, 'one clam chowder', no answer. I told the man 'I guess the cook can't hear me', I ran back to the kitchen and got the chowder and served the man."

Then I called back to the kitchen 'one ham on rye', again I told the man the cook couldn't hear, and I ran back and made the sandwich and served it," he laughed.

DeSanto was not only cook and waiter, he was the bartender also.

"A man came in one day and ordered a Manhattan. I didn't know how to make one, but I was determined," DeSanto said.

"I made a drink, the man drank it and said it was one of the best he had ever had and ordered another one."

"I fixed another one, but had forgotten what I put in the first one. That man left without drinking the second one," he laughed.

"Another time the same thing happened when a lady ordered a Pink Lady. I had never heard of a Pink Lady, but made something. The lady asked for second because the first was so good."

"She, too, left without drinking the second one," he laughed.

"That's when I found out I was no bartender and had better stick to cooking," he quipped.

DeSanto and his wife Mary never let hard times get them down. They had the will and always found the way.

Mary recalled the time they needed coal.

"We ordered two tons from Glen Booth. Our daughter Dolly was ill and I was tending to her when he delivered the coal," she said.

"John asked how were we going to pay for it. I told him let them put it in the cellar they won't take it out." We'll pay later."

A duck won at a shooting match was the first duck dinner served at the restaurant.

"We put the duck in the cellar and at 2 a.m. it was still quacking," DeSanto said.

"Mary said either the duck or I had to go. It took two hours to catch that darn thing, but we had a duck dinner, he laughed.

DeSanto recalled one Sunday morning receiving a call from a man who told him he was bringing some deer meat to be cooked for a dinner for about 80 people.

"He said all we had to do was cook it and the potatoes. Chef Shimko started cooking the meat at 9 a.m., the longer he cooked it the tougher it got."

"I couldn't understand that because deer meat is tender. We cooked it until 2 p.m. and served it to the people. I noticed they would chew long and hard and put it back on the plates."

"The next day in The Record there was an article that stated, 'we hope all the Democrats at Johnnie's enjoyed that wonderful dinner. We felt sorry for the old goat who couldn't turn out for parades any longer. We put him out of his misery and fed him to the Democrats.'"

Many celebrities have visited Johnnie's. One in particular, well remembered by the DeSanto's, was Eric von Stroheim, the actor, who spent three months with them.

He never stopped acting the whole time he spent with them, the DeSanto's recalled.

VonStroheim never wanted anyone to know who he was.

"We went to a clam bake and he told me he wanted to enjoy himself, so I wasn't to tell anyone who he was," DeSanto recalled.

"Well, everyone kept saying hello to me, no one paid any attention to him."

"VonStroheim asked me 'who did I think I was', he didn't like people not knowing him," DeSanto said.

"That's the way he was the whole time he was with us. He didn't want people to know he was an actor, but would get mad if no one recognized him," DeSanto laughed.

DeSanto met his wife Mary at a carnival in Mount Pocono. "She didn't like me very much, until she was told I was the best dancer in town," DeSanto laughed.

"I took her to a dance at the Casino Ballroom in Mount Pocono and it cost me $2 for both of us. Guy Lombardo and Paul Whiteman were bands playing there then. I guess Mary liked my dancing enough to marry me," he joked.

Not only did Mary marry him, but as he put it, "my employees seemed to be married to the business."

"The people who have worked for me leave only because of sickness," he stated.

DeSanto attributes his employees staying with him to the fact that he treats them "like humans".

"You have to be good to your employees in order to have them be good to you," he stressed.

DeSanto turned the business over to his daughter and son-in-law Dolly and Al Ingetti in 1962. Now a third generation is working at Johnnie's with DeSanto's grandson taking a hand in the cooking.

Two years ago DeSanto suffered a stroke and was partially paralyzed. Today he still pursues his favorite sport, golf, playing at every opportunity.

He attributes his recovery to the many hours his family has spent helping him become active again.

Mary smiled when she recalled his first words in therapy. "The therapist asked him what did he think about Watergate. He had no trouble getting it out. Plainly he said 'it stinks'."

DeSanto never had a formal education, he has learned about life from experience and hard work.

His philosophy is "you can't go wrong if you give, don't be stingy, and don't be afraid of hard work."

"I've never bet on a winner," he remarked. "I've always been for the underdog."

Blood pressure clinic set

GILBERT — A free blood pressure screening clinic will be held at the Palmerton Hospital Medical Unit in Gilbert from 10 a.m. to noon and from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Monday.

Palmerton Hospital Administrator Barbara Spadt said the screening program will be available to the residents of the area over age 15.

It will be strictly a screening program and persons with elevated blood pressure will be referred to their family doctor.

The screening program, sponsored in cooperation with the Midwestern Pennsylvania Heart Assn. and the Keystone Pennsylvania Chapter of the American Heart Assn., is aimed at finding persons who are higher risks for heart attacks and strokes.

The two women paused for a few minutes as they prepared to enter the local super market.

"I hate to think what this is going to be like after the Fourth of July. Why do you suppose everybody shops at the same time?"

"Well, if you come real early the produce hasn't arrived and if you come later, it has all departed."

"I think shopping during the summer rush can be hazardous to your health."

"Some of these shoppers are as bad at driving their automobiles as they are at moving around with shopping carts."

"You better believe it. Last Summer I had one woman hit my car three times while she was trying to park."

"What was she trying to do, win a cigar?"

"I asked her for her autograph."

"For heaven's sake, why?"

"I told her she was probably the first person I had ever met who must have learned to drive in a crash carnival."

Market mix-ups

"Don't you love these people who ask to go ahead of you in line and then run back to the other end of the store to get something they forgot?"

"We used to have an absent minded neighbor who would always bring items up to the counter and then run back for something he forgot. The clerks called him the long-distance shopper. Because the things he left on the counter were always getting mixed up with somebody else's order he wrote a letter to the company complaining about how careless the checkers were."

"I guess the stores have a lot of trouble with shop lifters when things get real busy."

"My brother worked here while he was going to school. He said that one time, after a man checked out, the manager stopped him and took a couple of items out of the fellow's pocket."

"How did he explain that?"

"He said they must have fallen into his pocket when he walked by the shelf."

"What did the manager say?"

"He was speechless because the fellow accused him of unfair tactics in trying to sell merchandise."

Political reform: Careful, it's a two-edged sword

By ALAN OTTEN
Dow Jones-Ottaway News Service

WASHINGTON — Well-intentioned attempts to attract more women, young people and blacks into politics have contributed to a nightmarish explosion of presidential primaries.

Changes quite laudably advanced to dismantle an oligarchic power struggle in the House of Representatives have probably reinforced that body's natural tendency to drift.

Praiseworthy steps to end campaign financing abuses have further undermined the already-battered political parties.

In these and other instances, "reform" efforts to make things better have often had unexpectedly unhappy results. This has been clear for some time in broad economic and social areas: taxes, welfare, housing, health, corrections.

But it's just as true, it turns out, for so-called "process" questions — the mechanical rules of the game, where we would have thought the likely impact of change might have been more precisely anticipated.

This train of thought was specifically triggered by a recent conference at Harvard's Institute of Politics on the future of political parties. The politicians, political scientists, campaign consultants and journalists gathered there pretty well agreed that the two-party system was in sad shape and that its future was even gloomier.

And a few participants suggested that several recent political "reforms" had helped do the dirty.

Take, for example, new Democratic Party rules designed to "open up the party" to groups previously excluded from power. To avoid constant challenges to delegations chosen in party caucuses, many state parties switched to the primary method of delegate selection.

The 17 state primaries of 1968 will have multiplied to over 30 next year, and candidates are frantically darting back and forth across the country.

Less-known candidates will find it harder to get attention and consideration, and quite likely conventions will find it far tougher to compromise on any broadly-accepted middle ground nominee.

Conceded Rep. Donald Fraser, who replaced Sen. George McGovern as head of the Democrats' reform commission: "One wholly unintended and undesired result of the recent reform efforts has been the proliferation of presidential primaries. The democratization of the delegate selection procedures has spilled over the banks of party channels into the public at large, making the sound choice of a candidate far more difficult."

Public financing of presidential candidates, an innovation pushed by many do-good groups undoubtedly weakens political parties by further fortifying candidate organizations and candidate campaigns run independently of the parties.

Herbert Alexander, director of the Citizens' Research Foundation, asserted that "one of the last remaining ties between the party and the candidate — money — is being restricted or provided by government directly to the candidates, thus reinforcing the splintering and fragmenting tendencies already present in our candidate-centered culture."

More of the same sort of dilemmas lie ahead. Public financing of candidates, campaign consultant Douglas Bailey pointed out, could mean that huge numbers of candidates who couldn't have raised a dollar on their own will now have television money—further flooding the airwaves and also further weakening the parties.

A national presidential primary sounds highly "democratic" to many people, but most students believe it would further undermine each party's ability to accommodate different points of view and to nominate a candidate who can not only win but also govern effectively.

"The effect of all these reforms is the exact opposite of what was intended," campaign consultant Walter Devries exploded at the Harvard conference.

"They've confused the nominating process, made it almost impossible for little-recognized candidates to get nominated, drastically reduced access. I'm not yet anti-reform, but I'm damned near it."

Devries is still a minority, and probably should remain so. "You pay a price for reform," Democratic Party official John Stewart answered. "In solving some problems, you create others, but you attack those problems. You don't forget about reform just because it has a price."

No fast solution for builders

It is ironic that, while Monroe County area builders were meeting with area bankers to find out what can be done about the lag in second home construction, the U.S. House of Representatives was failing to override President Ford's veto of a $1.35 billion housing bill.

While the housing bill, touted as the salvation of the nation's depressed housing industry, was geared primarily at primary homes, the shifting of credit it authorized would have freed funds for second home mortgages as well.

That isn't going to happen now, and the message county bankers brought is still in force: Second home mortgages are going to take a back seat to primary home mortgages sought by local residents.

The bankers' argument is persuasive although unpalatable to builders. It makes sense to restrict home loans to those people who are going to make the deposits and use the checking accounts that make the loans possible in the first place.

Unfortunately for the builders, the second home market primarily is among out-of-towners who do their banking at Philadelphia and New York banks — which, we understand, themselves have set limits to the number of second home mortgages they will grant, thus further depressing the second-home market and the activity level of local builders.

What solutions are available? From the tenor of the builders-bankers meeting, none. From the tenor of President Ford's remarks when he vetoed the housing bill, very few there.

It looks like retrenchment time for area builders. Unless they can persuade people looking for second home mortgages to open active accounts at local banks.

Happy race day

Tomorrow is the fifth running of the Pocono 500 at Pocono International Raceway and, despite the traffic problems inherent in large crowds, we can count ourselves fortunate to have such a high-quality sporting event in our midst.

The race attracts large numbers of racing fans from all over the nation, and some of them (many, we hope) are bound to take notice of the beauties of the area and return for a more leisurely vacation.

The race also calls the Poconos to the attention of race lovers all over the country. Just the advertising alone by the race sponsor, Schaefer Brewing Co., publicizes the Poconos and Long Pond in a manner that would be hard to duplicate if the local economy or the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau had to do the job themselves.

We hope for good weather (it's been lousy the last few years) and pray for a continuation of the gratifying safety record: Only one person has ever died at Pocono, and that was the year the raceway opened, in 1969.

And we can wish everyone a good time... but don't call us on Sunday — we're off to the races.

The almost honest man

They say many years ago a highly-respected man ran for State Representative. His reputation for integrity and honesty was flawless; in fact many said he was so good he should be a preacher.

He was elected and went to the capitol when the legislature met. After a few weeks, however, he resigned and came home. When asked why, he answered, "They were getting too near my price."

The final throwaway

If Portugal's lost, at least save Azores — and airbase.

Jeffrey Hart

If you put together the following two incontestable facts, a rather pointed question arises of its own accord.

First of all, the population of the Portuguese-owned Azores is overwhelmingly opposed to being Communized. In the April elections there, the moderately conservative Popular Democratic Party scored a landslide victory.

Second, the Azores are the site of our important Lajes airbase. Lajes is a vital base for any number of reasons. It is a refueling stop for planes en route to the Mediterranean. It is an important part of the U.S. anti-submarine network and it is a guardian of the Atlantic shipping lanes.

Therefore the obvious question. Would not the time appear ripe for a Unilateral Declaration of Independence by the Azores? And should it not be U.S. policy to encourage this, give it diplomatic and other support, and guarantee the security of the islands once independence is an accomplished fact?

The islands, after all, are remote from mainland Portugal. By the time you reach the Azores from Lisbon, about one third of your transatlantic trip is over. It might be pointed out that the present regime in Lisbon came to power with the avowed intention of liberating its African colonies. How could it then object to the liberation of this colony in the Atlantic?

Two independence movements

The Azores actually do have two local independence movements. MAPA and FLA, which enjoy a wide following. In riots recently, independence-minded Azoreans briefly seized the local radio station and closed down the airport — events of some significance, but widely unreported by our media. The military governor of the Azores, General Altino Magalhaes, shows signs of being sympathetic to the independence movement, and at the height of the riots was actually cheered by MAPA militants.

Why the American media and politicians remain in the dark about these developments constitutes something of a mystery. Not only are vital U.S. strategic interests at stake, but there are hundreds of thousands of Portuguese-American voters in the U.S., a large percentage of them Azoreans. Many of these Portuguese-Americans are concentrated in Rhode Island and Massachusetts — yet a phone call to the office of Rep. Gerry Studds (Dem.-Mass.), for example, whose district is heavily Portuguese, elicited zero awareness of what is going on.

An Azorean Liberation Front? But, perhaps, only pro-Communist "liberation" movements have the sort of glamor that produces favorable media coverage, aid from the World Council of Churches, and laudatory orations at the U.N.

Yet why should the U.S. not encourage the liberation of the Azores? We supported the decolonization of Africa and Asia after World War II. Why exempt the Azores from our vaunted anti-colonialism? The Azoreans have a right, one would think, not to be Communized if they do not wish to be.

Meanwhile, European Portugal has become the Kitty Genovese of the global village. (Miss Genovese, you recall, was murdered on a Queens' N.Y. street a few years ago while neighbors looked on passively.)

In Portugal, the recent elections have made absolutely no difference whatever. The Communists received only 13 per cent of the vote, yet they are seizing total power nevertheless. The military government, ever more obviously an ally of the Communists, is simply behaving as if the elections never took place.

The Socialist newspaper Republica, the last anti-Communist daily, has been illegally seized by the Communists and they are going to get away with it. Squads of soldiers tour the countryside instructing the peasants that Bulgaria is an example of "true" democracy. The Communists have also seized an important Roman Catholic radio station, another island of resistance. Catholics, including clergy and nuns protested this, and for their trouble they were besieged by a howling leftist mob that hurled rocks and epithets for 17 hours while the troops looked on.

At the end of the 17 hours, the troops evacuated the Catholics. Under a front-page photograph of this the N.Y. Times had the gall to run the following caption: "Portuguese soldiers protecting nuns and other Catholics as they left headquarters of the Catholic Patriarch of Lisbon."

Can you imagine what the reaction would now be if a bunch of fascists or right-wingers were pulling this rip-off in Lisbon? You would have to print the editorials on asbestos.

But, though Portugal is going the way of Kitty Genovese, perhaps there is still hope for the Azores and the important U.S. base there.

Roscoe Drummond

Only presidents lead

WASHINGTON — This overwhelmingly Democratic Congress is losing the big ones to President Ford. It is so dismayed at its own nonperformance that it is looking for scapegoats in its own ranks.

That is a certain kind of humility, perhaps, but the catch is that each Democrat blames someone else.

Despite the advantages which the Democratic Party has — a 240-1 majority, important new reforms of the seniority rule, 75 bright, eager freshman members and an unelected President who ought to be an easier mark — despite all these assets, the record of the House of Representatives since it convened in January is woefully unproductive on crucial issues.

Speaker Carl Albert is saying so openly and candidly — no coverup, just a frank admission that Congress is not effectively transacting the public business.

Admits limitations

In a personal letter to all his committee chairmen, Speaker Albert admits that the House "will not be able to enact at this session the programs and policies" dealing with the nation's priority problems.

Instead Albert said the 94th Congress should develop the issues which it won't act upon and frame them into an appealing part of his party's 1976 presidential platform.

Well, that's one way to look at it but it seems to me that Speaker Albert is making the worst out of a bad situation.

Six months ago, fresh from one of the most decisive congressional victories in U.S. political history, the Democratic leaders were promising an era of "congressional government" wherein Congress would take the lead, produce the needed initiatives and pass the needed legislation.

It isn't happening and apparently Speaker Albert believes the voters will reward the Democrats for not doing what they said they would do by allowing them to try a second time.

Daniel Rapoport, a longtime United Press correspondent and author of the book "Inside the House," points out that the Democratic-controlled House appears to be losing regularly to the President, but, as he says, "even worse, it often appears to be losing to itself."

Pork-barrel defeat

It lost the emergency job-creating bill to presidential veto because the bill was loaded with too many pork-barrel appropriations.

The House proved itself afraid to face up to the energy crisis after it was given a strong conservation measure, whereupon the Democratic members in droves cut it to pieces: The end result was a Democratic nonsolution on energy.

I render no harsh judgment on this Congress. "Congressional government" is unattainable just as committees — especially a committee of 535 members — cannot lead. It can ratify or reject and the 94th is proving it. Only a President is in a position to lead.

Stories Behind Words

By William Penfield

Plant

Many words are derived from the names of objects with which there appears to be no connection. Take the word "plant," which is used to denote a tree, herb or shrub.

In setting out a herb, shrub, or young tree, the Roman farmer stamped the loose earth around the trunk with his foot.

This action was called "plantare" (to stamp with the sole of the foot). From "plantare" came the English word "plant," first as a verb and then as a noun.

Letters to the editor

Disinterring the good name of Col. Emery E. Norton

Editor, The Record:

"The evil that men do lives after them; the good is oft interred with their bones." So let it be with Caesar. So it seems to be with Col. Emery E. Norton, who was casually defamed in your story "Changes have been made in old Kautz farmhouse" on June 23.

Alluding to Col. Norton's arrival in Stroudsburg in 1867 and his erection of a stone mansion west of town, Bobby Westbrook then commits to print that old calumny that misguided Stroudsburg plebeians have been whispering behind their hands for generations.

"Though posing as a southern gentleman and creating quite a social stir," she writes, "Col. Norton was dismissed by other natives as a 'carpetbagger.'" Mrs. Westbrook is much too good a journalist to carelessly rely on antique gossip unconfirmed by research in any of the available documents that might have put this old wives' tale to rest for good and all. I can only ascribe her repetition of slander to a rare and momentary relaxation of her usual standards of fairness and objectivity.

The following summary of the colonel's biography, taken from The Jeffersonian (a forerunner of The Pocono Record?), should establish his reputation as a good citizen born and bred in the North, which he served faithfully in the Civil War, and as a successful New York state legislator and businessman and a Wall Street and New Orleans attorney:

1816 — Born at Scio, Allegheny County, N.Y.
1833 — Became a public school teacher
1834 — Secured clerkship in Belmont, N.Y., law office
1837 — Elected treasurer of Allegheny County
1838 — Admitted to the bar of Allegheny County
1844 — Admitted as member of the New York State Supreme Court
1850 — Elected to New York State Legislature
1854 — Organized law firm of Norton, Wood and Chamberlain, with offices at 44 Wall Street, New York City. (At the same time, owned and operated five saw mills in Allegheny County.)
1860 — Summoned by President Abraham Lincoln to serve in the Cassius M. Clay Battalion, a 100-man body guard to the President.

1862 — Appointed Commissary General of staff of General Nathaniel F. Banks, with rank of colonel. "Saw active and very perilous service at Vicksburg, Pot Hudson, Brazier City, and in the Red River campaign, and for some time was stationed at Baton Rouge, Louisiana."

1865 — Left the army and opened a law office in New Orleans, La. Admitted to practice in the Sixth U.S. Circuit Court, Eastern District of Louisiana

1866 — Appointed Universal Assignee in Bankruptcy for Louisiana and Mississippi, "in which very trying and responsible position for a period of ten years Col. Norton transacted a vast volume of important business."

1867 — Purchased farm one mile west of Stroudsburg and lived there in the summer, retaining his New Orleans residency by his gracious and courtly manner."

It is reasonable to assume that there was also a circle of less than friendly acquaintances who were quick to characterize the late colonel's manner as a "pose" and the winter accomplishments of this apparently privileged summer resident as "carpetbagging."

Is a man's reputation a matter of concern only during his lifetime? Col. Norton stopped caring about his good name 74 years ago. Perhaps he never really cared what his Stroudsburg neighbors, at least the unfriendly ones, thought of him or what stories they concocted to explain his rather conspicuous success. His grandchildren, however, are neither physically nor philosophically removed, and they do care.

Indira Gandhi: Will of iron or death of democracy?

By LEON DANIEL

HONG KONG (UPI) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's assumption of virtually absolute power indicates she has no intention of joining the swelling ranks of unemployed in the poverty-stricken nation that bills itself as the world's largest democracy.

If there were any doubts that the 58-year-old Indian leader would fight to the last ditch for the post first held by her father, the late Jawaharlal Nehru, Mrs. Gandhi dispelled them Thursday by declaring a state of emergency throughout the sub-continent.

Mrs. Gandhi used her decree to clamp hundreds of her critics in jail and impose rigid press censorship.

Her supporters saw it as a demonstration of what they call her "will of iron."

Her opponents mourned it as the death of democracy just 28 years after Indian independence.

What in other democracies would appear to be political overkill has in the past worked to Mrs. Gandhi's advantage, at least for the short term.

Just over a year ago she broke a nationwide rail strike by jailing an estimated 30,000 workers and their leaders and calling out troops to get the trains moving again.

Mrs. Gandhi's current troubles, which began with a court judgment that she was guilty of election malpractices, appear more threatening to her political future.

Mrs. Gandhi did not wait for the Supreme Court to hear her appeal on the ruling that disqualified her as a voting member of Parliament.

If the Supreme Court maintains that judgment, some observers say she could ignore it, contending that the law gives the Elections Commissioner power to remove disqualifications placed by courts on a member of Parliament.

In any case, another unfavorable court ruling probably would put Mrs. Gandhi in the most vulnerable position she has been in since she became prime minister in 1966.

The United States will view with apprehension the political crisis in the nation of 600 million which in the years since independence has absorbed more than $10 billion worth of American aid.

Despite all that food and technology, Indo-American relations were strained severely by the Indo-Pakistani and Indo-China War. Relations have improved recently but are still not warm.

Since India is far friendlier with Moscow than with Washington, there will be fears that the current crisis could push it into what has been called the "third world's club of one-party states."

The political opponents jailed by Mrs. Gandhi were a disparate group, critics from both the political left and the right. Some of those arrested reportedly were dissident members of her ruling Congress party, which is closely aligned with the Moscow-leaning Communist party of India.

Mrs. Gandhi justified the takeover with the assertion that some of her opponents had urged the army and the police to rebel.

India's army, disciplined and competent, has in the past stayed out of politics and there is no hard evidence that the generals contemplate involvement in the current dispute.

It is more likely that Mrs. Gandhi feared a mass civil disobedience campaign that could have thrown the nation into turmoil.

It also is likely that her instincts for political survival prompted her to crack down hard and swiftly "on the increasingly powerful opposition."

Queen's coming, by George

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Britain's Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip have accepted President Ford's invitation to visit the United States during the nation's bicentennial celebration next year, the White House announced Friday.

It will be a state visit, the brief announcement said, and is scheduled July 7-11. No itinerary was given.

"The President has invited her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II and the Duke of Edinburgh to pay a state visit to the United States from July 7-11, 1976, during the bicentennial year," the White House statement said. "The invitation has been accepted with pleasure."

More detailed plans for the visit will be made later, a White House official said.

The queen last visited the United States Oct. 16, 1957. She and Prince Philip attended the Jamestown Festival in Jamestown, Va., and stayed four days in Washington as guests of President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The royal couple then went to New York where the Queen addressed a special session of the United Nations General Assembly.

She spent three days in this country in 1951, when she was Princess Elizabeth. She has been the British monarch since Feb. 6, 1952.

Ugandans arrest Britons, may try them for treason

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Uganda authorities have arrested an unspecified number of British citizens and said they may be brought to trial on charges of treason, Uganda Radio said Friday. Treason carries the death penalty in Uganda.

In London the Foreign Office said it knew of the radio broadcast but had no confirmation of the arrests. A spokesman said British diplomats in Uganda were making inquiries with Ugandan officials.

The arrests were linked to the case of Dennis Hills, a 61-year-old British lecturer condemned by a military tribunal to be executed in Kampala July 4 for describing Ugandan President Idi Amin as "a village tyrant" in an unpublished book.

Uganda Radio, monitored in Nairobi, said repeated British "propaganda" about Hills would force Kampala authorities to take a "tougher line" against the approximately 700 British nationals who live in the east African nation.

"For the information of the British government some British are now in custody awaiting the military tribunal," the radio said. "They will possibly face the same trial as Hills because their cases are even worse."

The radio broadcast did not indicate how British residents — mostly missionaries, businessmen and farmers, had been detained nor did it give other details.

Amin postponed Hills' execution last weekend following a personal appeal by Queen Elizabeth II, but said the sentence would be carried out next Friday unless British Foreign Secretary James Callaghan flies to Kampala for talks.

The Foreign Office spokesman in London said Callaghan had not altered his earlier position — that he would go to Kampala only after Hills had been reprieved.

Kenyan authorities intercepted a convoy of Soviet equipment on the outskirts of Nairobi Thursday night and escorted five Russians, who were aboard the transporters, to Nairobi airport where they were put on a flight to Kampala.

Anne tiffs, tilts

HAMILTON, Mass. (UPI) — Britain's Princess Anne, at odds with the press after a rowdy news conference, joined some 90 other contestants Friday to start the U.S. Open Championship Horse Trials.

The princess and her husband, Capt. Mark Phillips, stalked from a media reception Thursday night after a sharp exchange with reporters who refused to follow her suggestion that they "put their pads away."

Actual competition in the championships at the Myopia

Hunt Club began with the compulsory dressage exercises Friday. The speed and endurance test will come today and jumping will be conducted Sunday.

Princess Anne, clad in blue jeans and a T-shirt, and Phillips arrived Thursday night at the Party Barn on the estate of Neil R. Ayer, president of Ledyard Farm Horse Trials Inc., for the reception for the British equestrian team. The approximately 85 reporters were told to leave all microphones and cameras outside.

ARE YOU READY FOR PENNSYLVANIA'S NO-FAULT AUTOMOBILE INSURANCE?

Question —

I AM GOING TO GET BROADER COVERAGE AT A LOWER PREMIUM. WHAT IS THE CATCH?

Obviously paying all of the medical expense, a substantial portion of wage loss, replacement services and survivors loss to everyone injured in an auto accident in Pennsylvania will be very expensive. Hopefully, the cost of providing these benefits will be off-set by savings resulting from restrictions on your right to sue for certain types of losses. The restriction applies to suits for non-economic loss (pain and suffering, inconvenience, disfigurement, etc.) Suit for non-economic loss is permitted if the victim dies, suffers serious and permanent injuries, is totally disabled for 60 consecutive days, suffers severe disfigurement which cannot be repaired, or has medical expenses which exceeds $750 (not more than $100 of which can be diagnostic X-rays and rehabilitation costs.)

Ann Landers

Pornographic letter

I refuse to start my letter by addressing you as "Dear Ann Landers." You are NOT dear to me. In fact, I think you must be either a nut or a Communist.

The letter you printed recently about the wedding night of two people who had had no previous sex experience was downright pornographic.

Don't you realize that young children read your column, and teenagers, also? To think you would print a letter by a lunatic who thought inexperience and clumsiness on a wedding night was a big laugh is beyond belief. Sex belongs in the bedroom, behind locked doors, not in a family newspaper.

The Communists are trying to destroy the morals of our youth and I believe either you are in cahoots with them or are being duped into doing their dirty work. If this letter gets into the paper, I'll eat my hat, but at least I got this off my chest.

Revolted Lady

Dear Rev: Start nibbling, dearie.

Sex is a part of life and life is what this column is all about.

If you find my column disgusting, please don't read it anymore. It's probably bad for your digestion and your blood pressure. I don't want to be responsible for heartburn or heaven forbid, a stroke. So goodbye, honey. I'll miss you.

Dear Ann Landers: Please print this for the young girl who couldn't eat in the presence of her boyfriend. She became ill and it was very embarrassing, so she quit trying.

Her problem is, of course, tension. She gets muscle spasms at the bottom of the esophagus where the food enters the stomach. If she will refrain from drinking cold water, and instead drink hot water or tea, it will relax this muscle and before she knows it she'll be able to eat small amounts of food.

The girl should start by taking tiny bites and then a few swallows of a hot liquid. When she sees she can handle small amounts of food, she will become more confident and eventually overcome her difficulty.

I had the same trouble years ago and my doctor worked out this solution for me.

Glad To Share

Dear Ann Landers: I am a Baptist. My fiancé is Lutheran. Mike's parents have money. My mother is a widow and lives on a limited income. Mike's folks are putting on the wedding and reception. BOTH WILL BE IN THEIR CHURCH.

As the time grows near, I become more and more depressed. My religion means a lot to me. Mike says his religion means a lot to him, too. We have talked it over several times but it always ends up the same way — a stalemate.

We are both 22 and very much in love — at least I thought we were. Now I'm not so sure. What does this sound like to you?

Wavering

Dear W.: Trouble. The kind that gets worse with time — unless you resolve it now.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I invited some out-of-town friends to visit us for the weekend. We have no extra bedroom and told them we'd make reservations at a motel. I couldn't think of the name of the motel so I called Directory Assistance and told the operator my problem. She said (in a very stuck-up voice), "I'm sorry but it is impossible for me to give you the number if you don't have the name of the place."

I told her I'd recognize the name if I heard it, and asked her to please read off the list of motels. Her reply was, "Why don't you look in the telephone book?"

I didn't need HER to tell me THAT. I thought the telephone company was supposed to provide service.

We pay our phone bills every month and it wouldn't kill them to help a customer in trouble by putting themselves out a little.

T'D Off In Birmingham

Dear T'D: Do you have any idea how many motels there are in Birmingham? Information operators should not be expected to read off lists. Your request was unreasonable.

Acts busy

By Jean Adams

BUSY (Q.) I met Richard last summer and we've kept in touch. We call and write each other. But lately every time I call him he's busy. He tells me to call back later.

He says he still likes me and he can't wait to see me and stuff like that, but I'm not sure 'cause of the way he's acting. He is 17 and I'm 16. I really like him a lot.

Discouraged in Texas

(A.) If you go to the effort and perhaps expense to call Richard and he can't talk at the moment, he should call YOU back when he is free. Telling you to call him back later does not show a great deal of enthusiasm on his part.

Unless he begins to show more interest, I would stop calling and writing him.

A FRIEND: (Q.) How can I find a friend that I can trust? I used to have a best friend but I lost her. How do I go about finding a true friend?

Friendless in Florida

(A.) When I advise someone to find a friend or friends, I do not mean to just go out and pick someone at random and say, "You are going to be my friend." It doesn't work that way.

True friendship evolves over a period of time of getting to know one another, of sharing and caring, of growth in familiarity and trust.

Be friendly with everyone you meet. Those who return your friendliness are potential friends. The true friends will emerge as time goes on.

(Write to Jean Adams, care of The Pocono Record, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas, 77001. Every letter is read, but because of the great number received Jean Adams cannot send personal answers.)

Opening lead — five of diamonds.

This deal comes from a team of four championship. Six hearts was reached at both tables, but at one of them the declarer went down, while at the other the declarer made the slam.

At the first table, South won the diamond lead with the ace, played a heart to the king and continued with a heart to the ace. West showing out, declarer played the king of diamonds, ruffed by East, and later lost another diamond to go down one.

At the second table, against the same opening lead, declarer played the hand with far more cunning. He drew a round of trumps with the ace and then, to cover the possibility of East's holding a singleton diamond, entered dummy with a spade and returned a diamond.

Had East ruffed, South would easily have made the rest by drawing a second round of trumps and ruffing his remaining diamond loser in dummy. But East correctly discarded a spade on the diamond lead from dummy and declarer won the trick with the king.

South thereupon led a third round of diamonds and ruffed in dummy with the king! He then returned to his hand by ruffing a spade.

Next came the fourth round of diamonds, ruffed by declarer in dummy and over-ruffed by East to produce the first and only trick for the defense.

So South made six hearts by his masterly approach to the play. He established a trump trick for East by ruffing with dummy's king, but he then neutralized East's trump trick by ruffing his last diamond with dummy's five. South may have lost the battle but he won the war.

Gypsy moth invasion not all bad for state's forests

HARRISBURG (UPI) — The devastation the gypsy moth and oak leaf roller cause in Pennsylvania's forests may not be such a bad thing after all.

The tree cutters and resort owners who make money from the woodlands don't think so, of course.

The oak leaf roller, a small green caterpillar, has killed oak trees covering 100,000 mountaintop acres, and most of the trees cannot be salvaged for commercial use.

And while the voracious gypsy moth caterpillar has not devastated whole forests in the Pocono Mountains, it has killed millions of oak and other hard and soft wood trees.

But a few persons who don't measure the value of a forest in terms of board feet of lumber or tons of paper pulp — and even a few who do — say the insect damage has in many ways been beneficial.

Pennsylvania's forests are in trouble today because of the extensive logging that took place 65 to 100 years ago, says Sam Cobb, director of the Bureau of Forestry in the Department of Environmental Resources.

After the loggers took most of the virgin white pine, hickory, maple, beech, cherry and oak, the forests came back almost exclusively in oak and most of the trees are the same age, he said.

Conditions became perfect for insect damage.

The oak leaf roller — which was a minor insect that hardly anyone noticed — exploded out of control. And the oak-loving gypsy moth spread quickly into Pennsylvania from New England.

"The gypsy moth damage east of the Susquehanna River probably will be beneficial because it has thinned out some of the oak trees," Cobb said.

"The composition of the forest will change from oak only to oak and something else — red maple or some other species — and future insect problems probably won't take such a heavy percentage of the stand."

Different story

Cobb said, however, that west of the Susquehanna where the oak leaf roller has wiped out whole forests along the ridge tops the story is different.

"It's a disaster area," he said. "It probably will take 50 to 100 years to get a reasonable stand of trees back in that area."

Part of Cobb's job is to manage the state forests so they produce high quality lumber, so it is easy to understand why Cobb thinks that way.

But there are others — game biologists and naturalists in particular — who can see benefits even in this vast destruction.

Paul Wiegman, a naturalist for the Western Pennsylvania Conservancy, a private conservation group, said that mature or maturing forests such as exist in Pennsylvania are comparatively sterile.

The tall trees produce acorns and other nuts that provide food for deer, turkey and other animals, but they also shade the forest floor and prevent the growth of plants that give wildlife cover and year-round food sources, he said.

But when vast areas of a forest are burned out or killed by insects, sunlight reaches the ground and wildflowers, mountain laurel, blueberries, huckleberries, ferns and different trees such as aspen and birch can grow.

This gives wildlife more food and cover and it gives scientists a chance to study what happens when a forest renews itself, Wiegman said.

"Now we can get information about the reasons why some of the forest stands and game populations exist as they are today," said Dr. James Lindzey, director of the cooperative Wildlife Research Unit at Penn State.

"By watching these areas and determining what happens to the plant and animal complement, we can get an idea of the kinds of management that would duplicate this in the rest of the forests."

New growth results

"And by evaluating the ecological impact of the new growth that results, we can learn what we have to do to forest areas to get what we want out of them."

Jerry Hassinger, a biologist with DER, said he is studying what is happening to different wildlife species in the oak leaf roller areas.

Deer should benefit, he said, because there will be more browse. The extra cover will help rabbits, song birds and rodents and predators such as hawks and fox that feed on them, he said.

But Hassinger said that ruffed grouse may not come back in the numbers some people hope for.

"Grouse tend to depend on aspen buds for winter food, and so far, there is no indication that aspen will grow heavily in these areas because there are few existing trees to provide seeds," he said.

Although wild turkeys depend heavily on acorns and other nuts, they may not suffer because of the loss of the oak trees, Hassinger said.

Most of the dead trees are on the ridge tops, he said, and only a few of the trees on the slopes and in the valleys were killed so there is still plenty of food available.

Also, he said, turkeys bring their broods into open areas to feed on insects so in that sense, the new open areas could be beneficial.

Cobb said the bureau is still studying what should be done in the oak leaf roller area.

Alternatives range from total replanting with commercially desirable trees — which would be very expensive — to doing nothing at all, he said.

So far, the only planting that has been done is along roads and streams.

Persistence of myths

It is amazing how many medical myths and old wives' tales persist. One of my readers specifically asked if gout is a rich man's disease. It isn't.

The myth stems from the well-known cartoon of the very obese, rich tycoon, sitting in and overstuffed armchair. His swollen toe is swathed in bandages and elevated on a pillow, while his butler serves and pampers him.

This is a misconception. Gout is not a socially selective disease. It occurs among people of all social and economic levels and in all geographic areas.

Gout is a complex disturbance of the body's utilization and elimination of uric acid. Diets that are rich in purine produce excess uric acid. People with a gouty tendency seem to accumulate uric acid in the blood and in the body tissues. Liver, sweetbreads, kidneys, gravies and anchovies are great offenders.

Many excellent drugs can prevent the formation of uric acid and help in its elimination.

Another myth exists that a beefsteak cures a black eye. There are no medical properties in beefsteak for this. A black eye caused by an injury is best treated by cold, moist applications.

When an injury first occurs, an application of cold slows down the bleeding and prevents swelling. After a few hours, however, warm applications help absorb the blood and make the bright colors disappear more rapidly.

Do we feed a cold and starve a fever? The argument has raged for years. Colds are infections that normally deplete the body of protein and energy. With or without fever, a cold, gripe or flu is benefited by small, frequent, light, nourishing feedings.

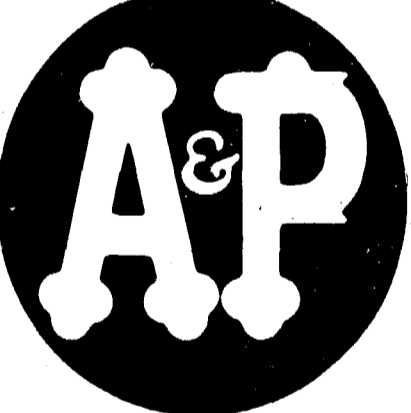

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH . . . Leftover custard desserts and salads with mayonnaise must be refrigerated quickly. They can be breeding grounds for bacteria, especially in hot weather.

Ovens may be hazardous

Dow Jones-Offaway News
WASHINGTON — The government expanded its warning about possible radiation hazards from General Electric Co. microwave ovens, saying another 12,500 ovens may be involved.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) said consumers shouldn't use the ovens until the company makes the necessary repairs. The new warning follows an alert concerning 5,300 potentially defective GE microwave ovens. The ovens can leak up to 10 times the microwave radiation permitted by federal standards, the FDA said.

The brands involved are GE and GE-Hotpoint, labeled "Cooking Center" and "Versa-tronic." Each unit includes a conventional and a microwave oven. GE is being required to notify consumers to test the ovens, and to repair any that are defective.

The ovens covered by the new warning were manufactured from January 1972 to July 1973 and carry these model numbers: GE, J896002, J896003, J8956003 and J856004; GE-Hotpoint, RHV886002 and RHV886003.

Book fair begins Monday

STROUDSBURG — The annual book fair sponsored by the Stroudsburg branch of the American Association of University Women (AAUW) will begin at 9:30 a.m. Monday in the Keystone Room of A.B. Wyckoff's Department Store, Stroudsburg.

The sale will be held during store hours from Monday to Thursday and from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday. Both sale and store will be closed on the Fourth of July.

Proceeds from the annual fair will provide grant-in-aid for local students doing undergraduate study as well as fellowships for advanced study.

The Stroudsburg chapter presents grants to four high school graduates and contributes to the national fellowship program.

The book fairs will feature old and new books, hard and softbound, some limited editions, collector's items and estate libraries.

An exhibit of art work will also be shown at the fair.

Tass Jultstedt is president of the local AAUW; Audrey Cohen is coordinator of volunteers. AAUW is comprised of women who have completed at least a bachelor's degree.

Algae may be food in culinary future

LOS ALAMOS, N. M. (UPI) — It has been known for years that common algae is an excellent, although perhaps unappetizing, source of protein. Scientists at Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory now say algae could also produce energy for the world and turn a handsome profit for the algae farmer.

"It may prove to be the ultimate food and fuel source," says biologist Victor Kollman of LASL's Health Research Division. He and other scientists have been working with laser beams to study the photosynthesis of algae.

Kollman says one acre of land anywhere in the world could produce 1,460 tons of high protein algae for food each year, make a $1.5 million profit for the farmer, and then be used to produce large amounts of hydrogen for fuel and methane gas for fertilizer.

"I know the figures sound unbelievable," Kollman says, "but then, what has been accomplished by man's understanding and manipulation of natural processes has always staggered the imagination."

Kollman and two colleagues in the Laser Research Division, Dr. S. L. Shapiro and Dr. A. J. Campillo, have been using lasers to "watch" photosynthesis and produce algae many times faster than normal.

Photosynthesis is the natural process in plants by which light is turned into energy for growth. Because the process takes place in such a brief time span—one trillionth of a second—it has never been understood.

By using lasers capable of picosecond, or trillionth of a second, bursts of light and using ultra fast "streak" cameras, LASL researchers are now able to measure the conversion of light to other forms of energy in plants.

The scientists have aimed a laser at chlorophyll systems in plant cells to determine how light energy is transmitted by the chlorophyll "antenna" to a "reaction center" where it is used to produce proteins, sugars and carbohydrates, Kollman says.

Kollman has used airtight cultures to produce algae many times faster than in nature and thinks the process can be used commercially.

Kollman says algae also could be the source for energy by supplying large amounts of hydrogen. He says fuel from algae is feasible within four or five years.

Family Fare Building barriers focus of week

STROUDSBURG — Braking the environmental barriers that pose problems for one in 10 Americans will be the focus of National Awareness Week, June 30 to July 6.

Focus should be on solutions, not just problems, according to Ralph Knauf, president of the Monroe County Easter Seal Society.

"We would like to get people involved in making this community barrier-free. Most able-bodied people don't appreciate the numerous barriers faced every day by those with limited mobility, whether they be in wheelchairs, on crutches, elderly or pregnant. Curbs, steps, revolving doors, and other barriers prevent the physically handicapped from taking public transportation, finding accessible housing, seeking viable employment or conducting their business, he said.

National Awareness Week, to be observed in communities in all 50 states, is being co-sponsored by the National Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults and the National Paraplegia Foundation and will emphasize the theme "Independence Through Awareness" and the work that needs to be done to make all aspects of the man-made environment accessible to the physically handicapped and elderly.

Former baseball great Roy Campanella, whose sports career ended after automobile accident injuries confined him to a wheelchair, is national chairman.

One in 10 Americans has trouble negotiating steps, going through revolving doors, getting up curbs, finding accessible housing, using public transportation.

Those 24 million people are those of us with limited mobility. Some are in wheelchairs because of disease or birth defects, others are on crutches as a result of a weekend sports accident, many are elderly. All have their lives complicated by man-made barriers in the environment.

During National Awareness Week, June 30 to July 6, persons have the opportunity to think about the barriers in our community — and the challenge to break those barriers.

Business zone size debated

BUCK HILL FALLS — The Association of Concerned Taxpayers (ACT) of Barrett Township is preparing a proposal to submit to township officials regarding a rezoning of a seven-mile area in the township.

In April, the board of supervisors discussed changing the nine-year-old zoning ordinance in order to allow the township to grow.

Rezoning from residential to commercial was proposed for an area from the railroad tracks in Cresco to the crossroads at Rte. 390, along Rte. 447, up to Long Road, Mill Creek Road and Dutch Hill Road.

The board of supervisors deferred action until its July meeting.

At Thursday's ACT meeting, Miss Mary Lou Baumann, president, stressed that the organization is not opposed to rezoning or growth but does feel the proposed seven miles of rezoning is too much for a population of approximately 3,000.

ACT is particularly opposed to rezoning Dutch Hill Road from residential to commercial. Miss Baumann said this area is not conducive to business.

ACT is in favor of rezoning areas where there are existing business establishments in order to give owners the opportunity to expand.

Because of the nine-year-old zoning ordinance, these non-conforming establishments are limited to 25 per cent expansion.

ACT, in order to establish how many business people are interested in locating in Barrett, has conducted a survey of real estate brokers.

Their findings revealed two have located to date and, using past years as a basis, found that perhaps five more could be interested in commercial properties.

ACT is formulating plans for either a door-to-door or telephone canvass in the area in order to seek support from residents and property owners for their proposals.

Miss Baumann said the proposal will include a suggestion that size of structure, decor, and landscaping be encompassed in the proposed rezoning ordinance in order to assure the country motif be maintained.

ACT will petition the board of supervisors to instruct the local planning and zoning commission to hold regular monthly meetings in order for citizens to give input. Miss Baumann noted that no one was aware of where and when the commission met.

She said she had made inquiries and was told the commission had not met since last year.

She also noted that subdivisions have been approved by supervisors but no one was aware of when the planning commission met to review plans and make recommendations.

ACT will not hold meetings in July or August. The date of the next meeting will be announced.

Lions award prizes

STROUDSBURG — Four area youngsters have been named winners in the Lion's Club clown coloring contest.

Robert LaBar, 5, of Stroudsburg, won in the 3- to 5-year-old group and Vincent Santucci, 6, of Stroudsburg R.D. 5, won in the 6- to 9-year-old group.

The winner in the 9- to 12-year-old group was Francis Kitchen, 10, of Stroudsburg. Lisa Beaver, 10, of East Stroudsburg, was selected as the winner at random.

The children received free passes to the Royal Wild West Circus and other prizes from the Lion's Club.

The circus is an annual event of the club and is being held today at 4 and 8 p.m. at Pocono Vacation Park at Shafers School House Road and Business Route 209.

Student school director speaks up

STROUDSBURG — Deborah Hankins of Stroud Township expects to get the best education in school government this year: She has been elected the student representative to the Stroudsburg Area School Board.

She has been on the job a month and already has spoken out on the controversial district budget proposed for the 1975-76 school year. At a school board meeting June 4, she urged members not to cut advanced high school courses to balance the budget.

Miss Hankins, a blond-haired, college preparatory student who is a lifeguard at a local campground this summer, views her job as that of a liaison between students and the school board.

"Any student can come up to me and make suggestions," she said. "Every Monday each class has a meeting. I will go to those to get ideas."

In a district where art,

Deborah Hankins

music and foreign language teachers and programs may be cut from the budget to reduce a proposed real estate tax increase, Miss Hankins said suggestions by students so far seem out of line. "The ideas so far deal with extra things and that's going to cost money. They want money for special things, like the year book. That's kind of impossible this year with the budget cuts."

Students generally are against cutting teachers and programs, Miss Hankins said. "But the kids don't have to pay the taxes."

With a brother in the high school band, she regrets the loss of the elementary music and art programs. "The arts are an important part of people's lives. People are going on to college and going on to music or art school. If the program is cut, there goes what they really wanted to do."

One of her goals is to attract students to school board meetings to hear firsthand how the district is run.

Miss Hankins, a three-year member of student council, was elected to her non-voting position by students in grades 9-12.

The senior is a member of the National Honor Society, the girls' tennis team, German Club and the Varsity S Club.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Hankins of Wedgewood Lake Estates, she will serve on the nine-member board until June 1976.

Lehman-Delaware establish boundary

MILFORD — It took about a year, but Victor Orben and a team of surveyors finally got Lehman and Delaware Townships in line.

The line Orben established was the boundary between the two townships that had never been officially marked.

Commissioned by both boards of supervisors, Orben, a former county surveyor, was asked to survey the line before two large subdivisions in the area are developed.

According to Orben, the subdivisions are part of Pocono Mountain Lake Estates and contain about 50 to 60 lots each.

"The mass of the subdivisions are in Delaware, but little necks of property cross into Lehman," Orben said.

"Supervisors wanted to know where the line is for future assessment purposes," he added.

So far, there is only one house built in the two subdivisions and it falls in Lehman Township.

Orben explained that in past years no physical line was placed on the ground to identify the boundary.

"Old-timers knew where the line fell, but their knowledge wasn't exact," he said.

Orben said his firm surveyed the boundary from the Delaware County boundary," he said.

Job claims decrease in Poconos

STROUDSBURG — The total number of weekly claims for unemployment insurance filed in the seven-county area of Northeastern Pennsylvania registered a decrease of 1,432 last week, according to Attorney Guy A. Solfanelli, district manager, Bureau of Employment Security.

A total of 32,658 claims were filed under all programs, which is 4.2 per cent below the 34,090 claims filed during the preceding week.

Claims filed under the regular unemployment insurance program registered a decrease of 4.8 per cent from the preceding week while special programs reflected a net increase of 1.1 per cent.

According to Solfanelli, only two of the seven counties in the area showed gains in the number of benefit weeks claimed under the regular unemployment insurance program for the week while five counties showed declines.

In Monroe County, weekly unemployment insurance claims filed decreased 12.4 per cent, from 1,746 to 1,529.

Claims filed increased in Pike and Wayne Counties, however. In Pike the increase was 53 per cent, from 313 to 479. In Wayne County, the increase in unemployment insurance claims filed was 56.3 per cent, from 387 to 605.

Weekly claims filed under the state-funded, nine-week extended benefits program decreased by 1.2 per cent last week, a drop of six claims.

A 3.3 per cent drop was experienced under the 13-week, federally-funded supplemental benefits program. Claims dropped to 2,473 from 2,557 the previous week.

An increase of 5.6 per cent was shown in volume of claims filed under the special unemployment assistance program last week. The number of claims taken was up to 512 for the most recent week, a gain of 27 claims.

Write to know

Q. I found a small, hand-cranked sewing machine in my attic. The inscription on it reads: Chas. Raymond, Brattleboro, Vt. Can you give me any information on either the company or the machine?

J.M., Canadensis

A. An antique dealer would probably have to see the machine to determine its worth and/or heritage. Check under the yellow pages in the phone book.

Q. I ordered the Paul Michael Weight Loss Plan on March 5, 1975 for $10 with a guarantee of a full and immediate refund — no questions asked. I returned the plan on April 12. I have since written twice to the company, but have not received the refund. Can you help me?

T.H.W., Hopatcong, N.J.

A. Your refund was approved on May 22. It takes several weeks after that for the check to clear the computer and arrive at your home. You should receive your refund in the mail any day.

Q. Do you know of anyone who collects Mickey Mouse memorabilia? I have a pair of slate book-ends of Mickie and Minnie in very good shape.

T.T., East Bangor

A. We'll print your request and see if any readers express an interest in the items.

Q. I have an autograph of a famous person on a photo and would like to have its authenticity checked. Is there anyone in the area qualified to determine the authenticity of famous people's signatures?

E.M., East Stroudsburg

A. The information you provided us with is pretty vague. If the autograph is of an historical figure, an organization such as the Monroe County Historical Society may be able to help. On the other hand, if it's a movie star, the chances are probably good that it's not an actual autograph but a stamped copy.

Q. Can you find the new address of the Haskin Service? This company, which sells books, used to be located at 635 First Street, NW Washington.

H.S., Kunkletown

A. Washington, D.C.'s phone directory lists no such company. Perhaps a reader knows where the company is now located.

Q. I have some old paintings, pictures, and books I would like to part with. Do you know anyone who might be interested?

C.M., Blakeslee

A. Try looking under the yellow pages under antique dealers.

Q. Last June I worked for Foam Tech Inc. in Stroudsburg. At the end of June I was laid off and the factory was closed. My final paycheck bounced and I have been trying to collect my wages ever since. Can you tell me where to go for help?

T.S., Stroudsburg

A. The Department of Labor and Industry's Bureau of Labor Standards is the office you need to help you. Expect a form with instructions in the mail and return it to the bureau.

Aside to D.W.A., East Stroudsburg: You fail to provide enough specific information for us to help you. What are the full details of the case?

Q. Will The Pocono Record ever resume printing the winning New York lottery numbers? I buy a ticket every week, but I can never get the number. I'm sure a lot of tourists would be interested in the numbers also.

K.W., East Stroudsburg

A. We'd like to print the numbers, but we can't. A federal law prohibits it. Unless a newspaper has a large bulk of its circulation in a neighboring state it can't print winning lottery information from another state. The Philadelphia newspapers, for example, which have a large New Jersey circulation, are permitted to print the winning New Jersey numbers. Until the law is changed, there's not much we can do.

Q. On April 29 I mailed $2 to Trans-Atlantic Imports in New York for four packets of incense. Although my check was cashed on May 5, I never received my merchandise. Can you help me?

J.K., Henryville

A. Trans-Atlantic Imports said it would immediately issue a replacement order of incense to you. Expect it in the mail shortly.

Artists for environment real, abstract?

By STEVE DRACHLER
Pocono Record Reporter
MINISINK HILLS — The Pocono Artists for Environment are not ordinary, run-of-the-mill artists.

"They do not paint pretty pictures of landscapes or sculpt busts of famous persons.

Instead, the dozen so-called artists use their hands and minds in a different sort of art. They try to mold an existence out of the 42 acres of Delaware River bottomland they occupy.

"We don't make art for art's sake," said red-bearded Brian Young, who prefers to be called Briouyoung.

"We perceive what we do as an art — taking something wasteful and making it useful again. Recycling, but interjecting some of our personalities into what we do."

Briouyoung, 27, and raised in Europe, has been a river valley resident for the past five years. He lived for four years as a Tocks Island squatter.

The artists presently are having a disagreement with Mrs. Marcia Clapp DeRocco, of the Pocono Art Center, lessor of the land owned by Albert Leeburg.

Briouyoung said he is hopeful arrangements can be made for the Artists for Environment to continue using the land. Mrs. DeRocco refused to answer questions on the art center or the Pocono Artists for the Environment.

"We feel this can be an example to people of a lifestyle they can turn to. There is so much waste in the world. It can be put to good use," Briouyoung said.

The land was once a camp for city kids under the auspices of the Big Brother Foundation. Mrs. DeRocco has unsuccessfully tried to convince Gov. Milton Shapp to locate an art center at the site. Shapp recently unveiled plans for a Pocono Art Center near White Haven.

Asked what ties the new group has with former Tocks Island squatters, Briouyoung said, "We have broken the old squatter ties."

"We tried to make the same point as this when we lived up the river on federal land," Briouyoung says, walking up the rocky road leading from the vegetable gardens and house he and another fulltime artist live in.

"There was so much emotionalism and negative attitudes connected with the squatters it was impossible to make our point — people don't need electricity or cars."

He said neighbors have not complained about the artists' presence and have come over to see what they have been doing.

Tugging at his beard and squinting in the bright afternoon sun, Briouyoung surveys the neat plots of peas, corn, beets, beans and herbs, with a small section reserved for peanuts.

"We feel we can grow food to get 10 people through to next year's harvest. That's our main goal this year."

He walks inside a large, pine shrouded building near a legendary Indian burial ground.

His feet crunching broken glass on the floor — product of dozens of smashed windows, Briouyoung said vandals have disrupted the spiritual nature of the area.

"Since we came, I think there has been less vandalism. We've cleaned up the area and have caught some egotists destroying buildings.

"They just don't realize what a resource this place could be."

Briouyoung said the artists dream of converting the buildings into a food cooperative, continue operating a free store and of establishing a place where young people can come to learn about the environment.

"I think we can do it. Every year we have come a little bit further. We do everything on our own, with no money from welfare. We don't need a lot of money to turn our labors into a creative product.

"All we need is a chance."

Autos collide

BUSHKILL — A two-car accident on Route 209 one mile north of Bushkill at 5 p.m. Friday caused less than $100 damages and no injuries.

State police at Milford said a car driven by Wilbur Dougherty, 44, of Northampton, was stopped in the northbound lane to make a left turn when it was struck by a car operated by Robert Madey, 21, of Burlington, Conn.

Theft heard

MOUNT POCONO — A Pennel man was released on $1,500 bail after his case on charges of theft of services was turned over to the Monroe County Grand Jury.

District Magistrate Clara Pope said Douglas Barden, of Pennel Psychiatric Center Annex, had a preliminary hearing before her Friday on charges of theft of services from Russell Eggert of Pocono Flooring Inc., Pocono Summit.

The magistrate said Barden was arrested in Pennel by Tobyhanna Township Police after the incident occurred around July 2, 1974, and was then committed to the county jail in lieu of bond.

Sciota man sentenced

STROUDSBURG — A Sciota man was sentenced to three years' probation Friday in Monroe County Court proceedings.

Michael Arnold was given the sentence by President Judge Arlington W. Williams. Arnold was arrested last August and pleaded guilty to a charge of theft in October.

Wage strike threatened

State workers paid more already

By FLIP DeLUCA
Pocono Record Reporter
STROUDSBURG — Most state workers in Monroe County who are threatening to go on strike Tuesday for higher wages already make several hundred dollars a year more than their civilian counterparts.

Information available at the state Bureau of Employment Security (B.E.S.) gives the salary ranges for state jobs.

In November, the B.E.S. compiled a list of salaries for several occupations in Monroe County. A comparison of the two sets of statistics shows the state pays more than most private employers.

According to the figures, a general office clerk under the state's Civil Service program would make between $6,337 and $7,084 annually. A general clerk in Monroe County not employed by the state makes from $5,200 to $7,280 a year with an average of $6,359.

A secretary under civil service makes between $7,804 and $9,682. A secretary for a private firm averages $6,258 with a range of $6,240 to $8,320.

The statistics show a clerk-stenographer working for the state starts at $6,866 to $8,489 while a general stenographer in a private office ranges between $6,500 and $7,280 with an average of $6,945.

A clerk-typist under civil service makes between $6,592 and $8,137 while a civilian typist ranges between $5,460 and $6,240 with a $5,801 average.

A switchboard operator answering state calls starts at $6,592 but after one year can make between $7,804 and $9,682. Switchboard operators surveyed by B.E.S. in the county make between $5,200 and $6,760 with an average salary of $6,110.

A janitor working in a private factory averages $6,365 a year compared to $7,031 for a state custodial worker.

A maintenance mechanic in a civilian plant makes an average of $8,756 a year. A state maintenance repairman starts at $7,804 and can go as high as $11,032.

Laborers in the county make an average of $7,238 according to B.E.S. statistics. A state laborer has a starting salary of $7,159.

Civilian shipping or receiving clerks make an average salary of $7,935 where the state average is $7,726.

According to the B.E.S. figures, a sewing machine operator for the state makes between $5,320 and $6,787 while one for a private firm makes an average of $6,614.

Members of the state union, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME) have threatened to strike at 12:01 a.m. Tuesday.

Earned income revenues increase for area schools

By HARRIET LEEDS
Pocono Record Reporter
BANGOR — Despite the recession, more earned income tax money was collected in the first quarter of 1975 than in the first quarter of 1974 in both the Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg Area School Districts.

Figures released Friday by H.A. Berkheimer, Inc., collector of the earned income tax for most of Monroe County's taxing districts, showed a seven per cent increase in the Stroudsburg Area School District and an 11 per cent increase in the East Stroudsburg Area School District.

In the first quarter of 1974, Berkheimer collected $100,905 in earned income taxes in the Stroudsburg Area School District. It collected $107,989 in the first quarter of this year.

In East Stroudsburg, collections for the first quarter of 1974 was $59,800 compared to $66,463 for the same period this year.

H.A. Berkheimer, Inc.'s secretary-treasurer, Raymond P. Scott also provided figures comparing the last quarter in 1974 and the first in 1975. Both school districts showed a slight increase.

The increase for this period in the East Stroudsburg Area School District was four per cent. It was three per cent in the Stroudsburg Area School District.

Dennis Harris, executive vice president and general manager said the tax-collecting firm hoped wage increases would offset revenue loss due to unemployment.

He attributed the increase in earned income tax collections in the two school districts to the boost the recession gave the ski resort industry.

Harris compared it to the situation in Florida this winter when hundreds of unemployed auto workers from Michigan flocked to resorts.

Scott said there was no breakdown that would pinpoint exactly where the increase was from. It could be from an increased number of taxpayers or from the same number of taxpayers earning more money. It could also be less people working and earning more money.

Fearful of the effects of inflation on their business, (Berkheimer is paid a commission percentage of what it collects) the firm began cracking down on delinquents early.

Field auditors were sent out to make sure employers were paying their taxes on time.

"We're firm but polite," Harris said. He explained he was very much aware of the onus on tax collectors and is ready to handle the "flack" — and often does.

Some delinquent employers in the Monroe County area — who collected the tax from their employees but did not turn it over to Berkheimer — are being taken before district magistrate for violation of the Local Tax Enabling Act.

Approximately 18,000 employers report to Berkheimer quarterly. It is the largest tax collection agency in the state.

DER without enough money

Moth control may end

By JOHN L. MOORE
Hawthorne News Service
Harrisburg Bureau

HARRISBURG — "The head of the State Department of Environmental Resources has said the state's gypsy moth control program may be abolished or curtailed because the legislature didn't give DER enough money."

"It's one of the things we're going to evaluate," Dr. Maurice K. Goddard, the DER secretary said, complaining that the legislature's $4.5 billion budget appropriates $6.7 million less than DER wanted for fiscal 1975-76.

Legislators from the Poconos were critical of Goddard's remarks.

Rep. William Foster, R-Wayne, noted that the state's infant gypsy moth program has had impressive results to date. "Now that we've got them (gypsy moths) on the run, I think he'd be very foolish to completely abandon that program," Foster said.

"This simply cannot be done. The appropriations bill will have to be supplemented by efficiency appropriations including one for the Department of Environmental Resources," said Rep. Russell Kowalshyn, D-Northampton.

"I don't like to be threatened. I don't like it at all," said Sen. T. Newell Wood. Wood said DER has "many sources of income" that Goddard could tap. "Why doesn't he charge for the use of state parks?" Wood asked.

DER's gypsy moth program consists of two phases: spraying of pesticides to kill off gypsy moth caterpillars, and establishing insects in the forests to prey on gypsy moth larvae.

The program has been fully operational for only 17 months. The legislature appropriated $868,000 for it for 1974-75.

Goddard said his department could scrap the parasite program and keep the spraying program, or could keep the parasite project and do away with the spraying program.

Goddard said the legislature's $4.5 billion budget appropriates $6.7 million less than DER wanted for fiscal 1975-76.

Goddard said his department would either have to scrap the spraying or parasite program.

Bitzer said it would be hard to evaluate the gypsy moth problem for next year until an aerial surveillance fight over the county could be made.

A surveillance flight will be made in the next few weeks, Bitzer said.

Smuggling charges dropped

MIAMI, Fla. — A U.S. Magistrate in Miami, Fla. has dismissed a charge of smuggling cocaine which was lodged against a 74-year-old East Stroudsburg woman last August.

The charge against Mrs. Madeline Portlow of 14 W. Broad St. was dismissed by J.V. Eskenazi, magistrate for southern district of Florida, at the request of the U.S. Attorney's Office.

"This office most respectfully requests the entry of an order dismissing the complaint currently outstanding against Madeline Portlow," Samuel Alter Jr., assistant U.S. attorney said in a letter to the court.

"As Justification therefore I wish to report that extensive investigation conducted in another district revealed that there is no evidence or indication of willful or knowing participation on the part of Mrs. Portlow in this offense."

Mrs. Portlow was apprehended by U.S. Customs officials Aug. 6, 1974 at the Miami International Airport after departing a flight from Bogota, Columbia.

Customs officials reportedly found 1.75 pounds of cocaine hidden in plastic tubes in a rug the woman was carrying.

Mrs. Portlow maintained that a friend had purchased the rug for her and that she had no knowledge it contained vials of cocaine.

WATER COLORS — Rain clouds moving faster than the stroke of a brush send artists scurrying to cover their work Friday as a two-day show by the Pocono Mountain Art Group begins. Some 40 artists will be back on display today from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. with prizes to be awarded at 3 p.m.

Three-time Indy winner overwhelming writers' pick

Foyt choice in Schaefer 500

By JOE MIEGOC
Record Sports Editor

LONG POND — Gordon Johncock will sit on the pole for Sunday's fifth annual Schaefer 500 at Pocono International Raceway, but the pre-race favorite is still the same: A.J. Foyt.

Foyt, who won at Pocono in 1973 when luckless Roger McCluskey ran out of fuel less than a lap from victory and who has won the Indianapolis 500 three times as well as numerous other championships, stock, midget and sprint car victories, is the overwhelming choice of writers covering this Schaefer 500 to take the checkered flag Sunday and pull into victory lane.

Johncock sits on the pole with Foyt in the middle of the first row and Californian Jerry Grant, running at Pocono for the first time, completing the front three. Indianapolis 500 winner Bobby Unser and Johnny Rutherford, both of whom trailed Foyt by some distance in the writers' poll, are joined by Wally Dallenbach in the second row.

Dallenbach and Johncock give famed chief mechanic George Bignotti two additional chances to increase the number of 500-mile winners he has worked with over the years.

Foyt has won one 500-mile race this year, the Triple Crown opener in the California 500 in March at Ontario. Unser's victory came in a close race at Indianapolis when he beat Rutherford to the checkered flag in a downpour that halted the race after 172 laps. It was a race Rutherford has said he felt he could win.

Same car for Rutherford Rutherford will be driving the same car he used to win both at Indianapolis and here at Pocono a year ago. His newer machine was knocked out of the race when Rutherford brushed the wall in the second turn last Saturday in the first lap of a qualification attempt. His Gatorade-McLaren crew rolled out last year's car and Rutherford, who also lost an engine Thursday, earned a spot in the middle of the second row Sunday.

Mike Mosley, Al Unser and Duane "Pancho" Carter make up the third row, with Mario Andretti joined on the fourth row by Pocono rookie Bobby Allison and Tom Sneva, who is miraculously back and ready to race just a month after being injured in a spectacular crash at Indianapolis.

Allison 'sleeper'

Allison could be the sleeper in the top 12 starters. He has been most famous for his exploits on the NASCAR stock car racing circuit, but has been designated by Penske Racing to drive here after running both at California and Indianapolis this year. Allison has driven in a pair of stock car races at Pocono, but this is his first championship car start on the 2.5 mile tri-oval.

Shortly after capturing the pole last Saturday with an average speed of 183.281 miles-per-hour, Johncock has somewhat mixed emotions about his starting position.

"Starting on the inside here is tough," he said. "The track is rougher and bumpier down low. I'd trade Grant in a minute."

But, Johncock still enjoys the feeling of being able to control the start of the final leg of the Triple Crown of racing.

Lost time in pits could mean loss of race

Timing among pit crew important to Foyt

By N.R. KLEINFELD
Dow Jones - Ottaway News

LONG POND — It is thought that no man alive can change a right front tire quite as fast as Cecil Taylor can.

Now, this is a distinction that, while surely interesting, might be considered of only marginal utility at your friendly neighborhood service station. But it is a skill that happens to be of great value to Taylor's weekend employer, whose name is A.J. Foyt.

Foyt, of course, is the husky Texan who some think is the best racing-car driver in the business today. And Taylor is one of the 10 men who make up Foyt's pit crew.

In the exciting sport of auto racing, pit crews often go unnoticed. All they do, after all, is change tires, pump gasoline and maybe do an occasional mechanical repair when their drivers pull in for service in the course of a long race.

But their job is crucial. In a race where the margin of victory may be measured in car lengths, the two or three seconds gained in a particularly speedy pit stop can win a race.

The nature of the pit stop has undergone a gradual evolution over the years from a lackadaisical affair to close-order drill of considerable artistry. It demands precision, discipline, specialization — witness Taylor's exotic skill — and blistering speed.

Foyt figures that his crew's successful melding of these factors is at least as responsible as he is for his success in a race.

"The whole concept of car racing is team effort," he says. "It's kind of like football. If you put together the right combination of plays, you do well. If you fumble in the pits, then you're not going to score."

Foyt's crew can get his bright red Gilmore Special (a single-seat, binged racing machine) in and out of the pit, fuel tank refilled, new tires mounted, in 12 to 20 seconds. The crew hopes to match that speed on Sunday during the fifth running of the Schaefer 500 here.

The Schaefer is one of the three premier contests for Indianapolis-class cars, the others being the Indy 500 and the California 500. The setting for Sunday's race, Pocono International Speedway, is a 2.5-mile loop of macadam on what was once a spinach farm.

The Foyt crew includes five full-time employees and five part-timers who have other jobs and assemble only at race time. He has picked them all himself, schooled them and assigned them their positions.

Now that some have been at their callings for five years or more, they are masters of the pneumatic wrench, the fuel nozzle and the lug nut.

"I took a number of guys who didn't know a thing about racing," Foyt says. "Hell, when I picked some of them, they didn't know a race tire from a screwdriver."

Knowing their callings as well as they do, Foyt's men will drill perhaps no more than five times for the Pocono race.

"It isn't like practicing the piano or warming up pitchers for baseball," says Howard Gilbert, the man who builds Foyt's engines. "Once you know how to do the stop, you don't want to practice too much or you become stale. The object is to concentrate out there, even if you've changed so many thousand lug nuts that you've been dreaming about nuts."

Connors gains Wimbledon 'eight'

WIMBLEDON (UPI) — Jimmy Connors and Roscoe Tanner swept into the Wimbledon men's singles quarter finals in straight sets Friday and Saturday.

Sandy Mayer upset New Zealand's 15th seeded Onny Parun with the same ease to reach the last 16.

But another American hope, Marty Riessen, failed against third seed Bjorn Borg in the first clash of seeds, and the 19-year-old Swede advanced to the last eight with a 6-2, 8-6, 4-6, 6-1 win over the 13th seed from Amelia Island, Fla.

Connors has not dropped a set thus far, and was never in danger of doing so against Phil Dent, the Australian who came within two points of stopping him in his successful championship run last year. In just 59 minutes, Connors routed Dent, 6-1, 6-2, 6-2.

Mayer specializes at upsetting the seeds at Wimbledon and, playing on the same No.2 court on which he ousted Ilie Nastase two years ago, he stunned Parun 6-4, 9-8, 6-2.

"I guess that is my lucky court," said Mayer, who comes from Wayne, N.J. "I'd beaten Parun twice before so I knew I was in with a good chance but this was the first time we had met on grass."

Tanner, the 11th seed from Lookout Mt., Tenn., beat Texan Mike Estep 9-8, 6-4, 6-2, and will meet the winner of the match between Mayer and fourth seed Guillermo Vilas of Argentina while Connors also waits until today to see if he meets Mexican eighth seed

Raul Ramirez or Texan Cliff Richey.

The fifth American left in the men's singles, sixth seeded Arthur Ashe, will play Briton Graham Stilwell for the right to meet Borg.

Vilas defeated Uli Pinner of West Germany with few problems 6-2, 9-7, 6-4, with two other seeds, Tom Okker and Tony Roche, completing the fourth round. Okker, the ninth seeded Dutchman beat Australian Kim Warwick 6-2, 6-3, 6-4 and Roche, the 16th and last seed, sidelined fellow Australian Ross Case, 6-2, 6-0, 6-3.

Chris Evert, the defending women's singles champion, led the six remaining seeds through to the last 16 with a 6-2, 6-2 win over Kazuko Sawamatsu, the bespectacled Japanese.

The only seed to have trouble was Britain's Virginia Wade, who came back from 1-5 down in the final set to save three match points and defeat Janet Newberry of La Jolla, Calif., 6-2, 6-8, 8-6 in a two-hour center court cliffhanger of seven match points.

Miss Newberry looked on her way out in the second set but saved a match point and then capitalized on one of Miss Wade's traditional attack of nerves to take the set and go 6-1 up in the fifth.

By this time Miss Wade, seeded sixth, was in tears but miraculously pulled herself together, found her original form, and Miss Newberry was unable to cope. The Californian girl saved two more match points but then Miss Wade put a smash on the chalk and it was all over.

The British girl will meet Rosie Casals of San Francisco in the fourth round after the Californian defeated South African Linky Boshoff of South Africa 6-2, 6-1.

Miss Evert, who has lost only seven games, will face Lindsey Beaven of Britain as her fourth round opponent.

Other seeds safely through included the No.2, Martina Navratilova of Czechoslovakia who ousted Greer Stevens of South Africa 6-4, 6-3; Margaret Court, the fifth seeded Australian who is looking more dangerous every round, who beat another Czech, Renata Tomonova, 6-0, 6-0, and Billie Jean King, the third American in the last 16, who topped fellow Californian Julie Anthony, 6-2, 6-3. Ms. King will play Belgian girl Michele Gurdal.

Evonne Goolagong Cawley, the newly married fourth seed, beat Ilona Kloss of South Africa 6-3, 6-2 and will now play another Australian, Jenny Dismond.

Mayer, ranked 17th in the U.S., fully deserved his victory over Parun, which took just 34 to 54 with two sparkling backhand passes and dropped only one more point to take the set.

Connors and Nastase, the second seeds in the doubles, failed to get past the second round when Australian Dick Crealy and Yugoslav Nikki Pilic beat them, 9-8, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4.

In an even bigger upset, the top seeds and world champions, Raul Ramirez of Mexico and Brian Gottfried of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., also went out in the second round, losing to Tanner and Charlie Pasarell, 6-2, 6-3, 7-5.

CONCENTRATED RETURN — Five-time Wimbledon champion Billy Jean King concentrates on a low return Friday on a shot by Julie Anthony. Mrs. King won the match, 6-2, 6-3. (UPI)

Golf's the game

By Joe Miegoc, Record Sports Editor

Lou Graham, who won the U.S. Open Monday in an 18-hole playoff with John Mahaffey, will be one of 15 touring golf pros who will visit Shawnee Inn and Country Club July 28 and 29 during an annual outing hosted by Horsman Doll Company of New York City.

Graham, whose even-par 71 beat the poor-putting Mahaffey by two strokes, will be joined by Miller Barber, Jerry Heard, Dave Hill, Chi Chi Rodriguez, Tom Shaw, Jim Simons, Marty Fleckman, Ron Cerrudo, Don Bies, former Masters champion Bob Goalby, Mason Rudolph, former PGA champ Lionel Hebert, IVB Golf Classic champ Tom Jenkins and Joe Inman.

Horsman conducts an annual party at Shawnee. Shawnee Golf Director Dick Farley has arranged a golf tournament for Horsman guests involving these touring pros.

Shawnee will also be hosting the first annual "Yankee Greats" golf tournament July 7, 8 and 9. Former Yankee shortstop and now broadcaster Phil Rizzuto will lead a contingent of former Yankees as well as other celebrity athletes in the three-day event.

The tournament is open to the public and a special three-day program has been arranged for participants. In addition to golf, special activities have been planned for the wives of the golfer as well as a social schedule involving cocktail parties and dinner.

Reservations for the tournament may be obtained by calling Shawnee at 421-1500.

Bob Banks and Dick Gordon fired a net 70 last week at Evergreen to win the club's members' get-acquainted tournament.

John Watson and Bill Hoff took second on a match of cards with the team of Paul Schaller and Glen Edinger.

Closest-to-the-pin honors went to Homer Hennings on the 175-yard, par-three sixth hole of the nine-hole layout.

If you happen to be planning a trip down south any time soon, you might be able to help stock the World Golf Hall of Fame in Pinehurst, N.C.

Norma Smith, curator of the golf "Hall," writes to advise anyone travelling close to Pinehurst should check their closets, attics and basements for unusual and historic pieces of golf memorabilia that they might donate to the Hall.

Most of the type of memorabilia we are interested in can be easily transported," she said. "Balls, clubs, photographs, scorecards and similar items can simply be packed with the vacationer's wardrobe whether they drive, fly, take a bus or train to Pinehurst." Pinehurst is located 60 miles southwest of Raleigh.

If you have any photos of famous golf courses in their early construction days, or any balls, clubs or other articles of equipment that have played vital roles in major championships such as the PGA, Masters, U.S. and British Opens, stop in at Pinehurst if you're down that way and they'll be glad to have them. Or even the U.S. and British Amateurs.

All inquiries can be directed to Miss Smith at the World Golf Hall of Fame, Pinehurst, N.C., 28374.

Varkoney's dart winner

SAYLORSBURG — Varkoney's recently was presented with its third straight Western Pocono Dart League championship at the league's annual picnic at the Saylorburg Play-ground.

American House finished second, with Mansion House third and Cross Roads Inn fourth. Valley View Inn was fifth and Woodley House finished sixth.

Harry Possinger of Varkoney's recorded the high game of 56 during the season, and also posted high average of 43.8. Sheldon Johnson was of Cross Roads the most improved shooter with a 26.2 average.

In the top ten shooters were Possinger; Frank Deutch of Varkoney's, 42.4; Ron Shoemaker, Varkoney's, 40.8; Denny Bachert, Valley View, 39.3; Bob Weiss, American House, 38.1; Reds Kresge, American House, 36; Bud Remaley, Valley View, 34.2 and Delbert Kresge, American House, 34.1.

Bench, Morgan, Concepcion, Rose pace balloting

Four Rees atop early 'all-star' vote

NEW YORK (UPI) — Led by record-setting vote-getter Johnny Bench, the Cincinnati Reds seem certain to have four starters on the National League team for the All-Star game.

Bench, for an unprecedented sixth consecutive year, has drawn more than 1,000,000 fan votes in the balloting for catcher, and his current total of 1,660,229 gives him a hefty lead over runnerup Manny Sanguillen of Pittsburgh, who has 587,123.

According to the official tabulations released today by the office of Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, three of Bench's teammates also are resting in comfortable positions for a chance to start in the All-Star game at Milwaukee July 15.

Joe Morgan has outdrawn runnerup Rennie Stennett of Pittsburgh by better than 3-to-1 in the second base voting with 1,450,660 ballots to 414,480; Dave Concepcion is the leader at shortstop with 1,259,681 votes to 780,615 for Philadelphia's Larry Bowa; and Pete Rose is far in front among the outfielders with 1,220,815 votes.

Masonic Temple shows Ali-Bugner

SCRANTON — Monday night's heavyweight title bout between champion Muhammad Ali and European heavyweight champion-challenger Joe Bugner of England and middleweight and light-heavyweight title fights from Madison Square Garden in New York will be shown on closed circuit television at the Masonic Temple in Scranton, with the first bout beginning at 8 p.m.

Tickets are priced at $7 before fight night and $8 at the door. Advance tickets are available at Tom Taylor's in Scranton or by phoning 842-2009. The fights will not be seen on any cable or box office television lines.

Ali and Bugner will meet in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, for the crown in a re-match of a 12-round fight won by Ali on a decision over Bugner in February of 1973 in Las Vegas. The Ali-Bugner match will be the main attraction and will begin on the screen at 10:30 p.m.

The 33-year-old Ali has won 47 of his 49 fights, 34 by knockout, while Bugner has won 51 of 58 bouts, losing six, drawing one and scoring 32 knockouts. He has won his last eight fights, five by knockout.

Middleweight champion Carlos Monzon of Argentina will meet challenger Tony Licata of New Orleans in the middleweight title opener from the Garden, with champion Victor Galindez facing challenger Jorge Ahumada in the light-heavyweight championship bout.

Monzon, champion for six years, has not lost since October, 1964, and has won 85 of 98 fights overall, knocking out 59 opponents while losing three fights and drawing nine. Licata, 25, has amassed a 46-1-3 record, scoring 19 knockouts.

Galindez, 25, has already beaten Ahumada three times in four fights, all fought in Argentina before Galindez became champion. Galindez stopped Ray Elson in the eighth round in the home television preliminary to the Ali-Lyle bout in May and has defended his title twice, beating Len Hutchins and Pierre Fourie. He has a 28-3-2 mark, with 16 knockouts.

Ahumada drew with light-heavyweight king Bob Foster, since retired, last year on national television in a bout which many thought Foster had lost. Ahumada has a 41-6-2 record, having scored 22 knockouts. He also lost a close 15-round decision to John Conteh of England for his version of the title.

Haas fires 3-under 69 to take NCAA golf lead

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Jay Haas shot a three under par 69 Friday to take a one stroke lead at the end of three rounds of the 78th annual NCAA Golf Championship being played at Ohio State University.

Haas' 54-hole score of four under par 212 is one better than Craig Carson of host Ohio State, the halfway leader; Alabama's Jerry Pate, the defending U.S. Amateur champion who had a 68 Friday, the best round of the tournament; and Tom Jones of Oklahoma State, who had a third-round 70.

Another two shots back at 215 came Oklahoma State's Lindy Miller and Phil Hancock of Florida. Miller had a two-under-par 70 and Hancock a 69 Friday.

Wake Forest, the defending champion in the NCAA event, holds a three-round total of 872, six shots better than runnerup Oklahoma State, which was only three strokes off the pace at the halfway mark.

Alabama, sparked by Pate's 68 and an even par 72 by Tony Hollifield, remained in third place with 883, followed by Brigham Young in fourth with 884 and Southern California fifth at 886.

Haas, a 21-year-old junior from Belleville, Ill., was the picture of consistency on the slightly overcast, hot and humid day.

He made the turn even with nine straight pars and picked up birdies on the 10th, 11th, 14th and 15th holes before suffering his only bogey of the day on the 16th when he drove into the rough and missed his only green of the day.

"I putted good all day," said Haas, low amateur in the last two U.S. Opens. "It's just that nothing dropped on the front side, although I wasn't very close."

But on the back side it was different. "It had to happen," he said, "I couldn't go 18 holes without making a few."

Pate, who had 74 and 71 the first two rounds and complained of the slowness of the greens, was five under par for his round going to the 14th hole of the 7,000-yard, par 72 OSU Scarlet course.

Working Around The Clock For You!

Some advertising messages are fleeting... they're seen or heard for a few seconds... and then they are gone.

It's not that way when you advertise in classified. Your message, in print, can be read and re-read... any time of the day or night.

When you're looking for results, look to classified. One phone call puts your ad in print and it keeps on working for you... right around the clock!

In Memoriam

IN MEMORY OF MY SON Christopher D. Dixon who has been chosen to join his Heavenly Father 2 years ago today.

If I had one wish I'd wish to have you back with me. If I had one wish I'd wish for that to be hand in hand, we'd always walk along life's narrow way, full of joy and love, I'd talk to fill our happy day. Yes, if I had but one wish I'd wish you back with me.

My Love for you will never die MOMMY

Card of Thanks

We wish to take this means of expressing our appreciation for the many flowers and cards during my extensive hospital stay. Thanks to all our relatives and friends, doctors and nurses. A special thanks to "The Club."

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Lesdine, Jr.

LAND SALES

POCONO COUNTRY PLACE

Announces Its Official

OPENING FOR THE SEASON

WE ARE INTERVIEWING Qualified Land Sales Personnel who are interested in affiliating with a prestige organization.

WE DO NOT give front money.

WE DO NOT give unfulfilled promises.

WE DO NOT make "here today, gone tomorrow" commitments.

WE DO OFFER association with the number one sales leader in the Poconos.

WE ALSO OFFER a community with prime location, completed amenities, central water and sewer, and all the things today's buyers are looking for plus the buyers to show them to. If you feel you can contribute to our already excellent sales staff and help us exceed last year's sales record, we are interested in talking to you.

"LIL HUSTLER"

It's the perfect little truck to take camping — With this vehicle you'll still have money left over to do what you want to do when you get there ... because of 31 mpg * you can go a long way on a little.

Because Datsun pickup costs so little, you have extra money to buy other things — like camper covers, tents, sleeping bags and other camping necessities.

Come up to Abelloff Datsun today and test drive the "Lil Hustler."

Scales of justice tip toward prosecution

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The scales of justice will tip slightly in favor of the prosecution in federal courts starting on Tuesday.

That's when federal rules of evidence become mandatory. The change probably won't be noticeable to the average person. But for anyone charged with a federal crime, it could mean the difference between jail and freedom.

Paul Rothstein, a Georgetown University law professor who has written a handbook on the new rules, says they will help the prosecution.

"Their aim is to increase admissibility of evidence," he said, "and in a criminal case the defendant normally is the one who wants to limit the evidence."

Until they are tested in the appeals courts, the rules could allow a neighbor to give his personal opinion about a defendant, force a doctor to testify about conversations with his patients and permit a polygraph expert to say whether a defendant is lying.

Most states strictly limit the admissibility of such testimony. Until the new rules were proposed, federal courts followed state laws in deciding what testimony and physical evidence could be introduced by either the prosecution or the defense.

Backers hope the new rules will bring uniformity and simplicity to the federal court system in both civil and criminal trials. They also see them as a means for reaching the truth.

The preface to the 24 pages of rules says they are designed "to secure fairness in administration, elimination of unjustifiable expense and delay, and promotion of growth and development of the law of evidence to the end that the truth may be ascertained and proceedings justly determined."

One of the most hotly contested provisions replaces state privilege laws in criminal trials with federal common law, which is to be interpreted "in the light of reason and experience."

If that sounds vague, it was not by accident. When the Supreme Court submitted the rules for congressional approval, it eliminated any privileges not specifically approved by federal law.

This raised an uproar from newsmen, doctors, ministers and other groups which have traditionally been accorded at least a limited right not to testify. Congress tried to appease them by leaving the privilege status unclear.

Under the new rule, a trial judge will have great discretion in deciding what privileges he will allow. Without new federal laws, such as a newsmen's privilege bill now under consideration, privileges are likely to develop on a case-by-case basis, and probably will be more limited than under state laws.

This could mean a doctor might be forced to testify about conversations with a patient, a priest about statements heard in the Confessional and a newsman about his sources, unless Constitutional grounds can be found to avoid testimony.

If you are planning to commit a federal crime, you had better cultivate the good will of your neighbors. The new rules are more permissive in letting friends and acquaintances tell a jury what they think about you.

Most states limit such testimony to general statements about a defendant's reputation in the community. The new rules permit personal opinions in some circumstances, and these could be highly prejudicial unless carefully controlled by the judge.

One of the most striking changes allows an expert witness to voice his conclusions from the witness stand.

Rothstein says this could permit a lie detector expert to testify whether a defendant told the truth. A psychiatrist could tell the jury whether he thinks a defendant is insane. Heretofore, such conclusions have usually been left to the jury.

There are safeguards for the defendant, too. Judges, for example, are given broad powers to limit potentially inflammatory evidence. The prosecution also will have less opportunity to introduce past convictions to impeach a witness or a defendant than it had under many state laws.

Cross examination will be limited to issues raised on direct testimony unless the trial judge grants an exception.

The full impact of the new rules will not be known for several years as various provisions are challenged in appellate courts.

International Raceway — growth pains worth it

By JOE RATTMAN
Pocono Record Reporter

LONG POND — Discussions among area businessmen who were also race fans led eventually to the Poconos becoming the location of a championship race track hosting the third jewel of auto racing's triple crown.

The ideas those discussions generated resulted in the formation in 1957 of Racing Inc., and the planning of the Pocono International Raceway. The project moved slowly and 12 years passed before the opening event at the track.

Planning the track consumed the first few years. Information and ideas about the major racing facilities throughout the country were gathered in hopes of bringing big time racing to this region.

The 1,000-acre tract of land near Long Pond that became the racing center was purchased after much travel and talk with a variety of consul-ants. That was in 1962, and financing was needed before construction could begin.

Three more years passed before capital to pay for the initial grading and construction was obtained. Money was raised through sale of stocks and debentures to the public. Construction was not completely finished until after the first Schaefer 500 was run in 1971.

The initial construction involved cutting out and packing the 2.5-mile tri-oval. Completion was delayed so that attention could be given to building the three-quarter-mile oval and finishing the main straight portion of the big tri-oval, which would be used as a drag strip.

Work progressed steadily after the awarding of a contract in 1968 for the completion of the track. The first sanctioned race was scheduled for the fall of that year. Bad weather forced officials to postpone the race a week.

Weather conditions made racing impossible the next weekend too, so with winter approaching, the race was rescheduled for the following spring.

That meant it was 1969 before the first official race could be held, but all of the top names were there to compete at the opener.

It was a tragic start for the new track. The race of super modified cars was the last for Troy Ruttman Jr. He was the only driver ever to die at Pocono.

More races were held in 1969, using the big oval, the drag strip and the 1.8-mile road course. After the first season, a contract was signed in February 1970 with the United States Auto Club to hold championship 500-mile races and late model stock car competitions for the next 10 years.

It meant realization of the dreams of the track's original sponsors, the coming of USAC championship cars to Pocono and the beginning of the annual Schaefer 500 races. It was a stimulus to get construction finished.

The contract created the "Triple Crown" and Pocono became the middle race of the three. Now it is the final leg of the schedule.

During 1970, the year before the first Schaefer 500, only three races were held. There was a modified sportsman stock car race, an AMA motorcycle event and a SCCA-national championship sportscar race.

Work to finish the racing facility continued even as cars practiced on the track for the inaugural Schaefer 500. The event proved to be a cliff-hanger. It had one of the closest finishes in the history of USAC championship auto competitions. Mark Donohue won.

Several other events were run in the fall, including the late model stock cars.

Hurricane Agnes, which drenched the Poconos and devastated nearby Wilkes-Barre, caused the second Schaefer 500 to be postponed for nearly a month. When the race was finally run July 29, it was a confusing one.

Al Unser was given the checkered flag but, the crowd had to wait until USAC scorers and timers studied their tapes and awarded Joe Leonard the victory. Because of the postponement of the Schaefer race, it ran back to back with the late model 500-mile race which had been scheduled earlier for July 30.

A few weeks before the two races were run, a day-long rock concert, billed as "Concert 10," was held and it turned into a Woodstock-style festival as 200,000 fans showed up, causing a massive traffic jam on area highways.

Several injuries and property damage were related to the festival, irritating township residents and leading to the enactment of a strict township ordinance requiring outdoor amusements to be licensed. Electric Factory Concerts, a Philadelphia firm, rented the raceway for a concert featuring top name rock stars last August, but the event never came off. Township supervisors held a meeting to consider the promoter's application and it drew an angry crowd of local residents.

For the 1973 racing season, a Moto-X course was added, giving the raceway a new dimension. A 2.8-mile road course was also added. It utilized the existing road course and the main straightaway.

Charity events were held that year, including a go-cart race that benefited individuals suffering kidney disease and an air show that benefited the Lackawanna and Luzerne Counties mental health associations.

The air show included aerobatic maneuvers by pilots using the world's fastest civilian light planes, parachuting and glider demonstrations.

Last year, 100,000 people attended the Schaefer 500 and traffic was heavy, but police reported "no real problems." There were no injuries in last year's race, won by Johnny Rutherford, but two spectators were hurt, one in a fall, and the other struck by a car in the parking lot.

The Koni-Pocono Motorcycle jamboree in August was marred when four persons were injured in two separate fights. Two men were arrested for aggravated assault with a revolver.

Heavy rains and high winds again disrupted the raceway's schedule last month. The Formula 5000 and the Trans-American championship races were postponed until June 1 from May 4.

Also last month, raceway officials met with the Tunkhannock Township Supervisors seeking a reduction of an amusement tax on raceway receipts from 4 per cent to two per cent. The supervisors refused the request and Dr. Joseph Mattioli, chairman of the board of the raceway, said the tax is "steep for the good we get and the damage we do to the township."

Elder Unser tries for national title

LONG POND — Bobby Unser, fresh from a second Indianapolis 500 victory and ready to make a strong run at a third national championship, will drive the Jorgensen Eagle in the fifth annual Schaefer 500 at Pocono.

Bobby, the older of a pair of racing brothers who won four Indy victories between them. (He also won in 1968 while Al Unser won in 1970 and 1971) will drive the same Offenhauser powered machine in which he won the rain shortened Indy event recently.

Bobby is the only U.S. Auto Club driver to have held the lead in each of the previous Schaefer 500 races. In four events, two of which he started from the pole, he has been in front 14 different times for a total of 149 laps.

He has yet to go the full distance, however. His best Schaefer 500 finish came in 1974 when he completed 197 laps and took fifth place to wrap up the Triple Crown Championship for Indy cars.

He wound up in the top five in 12 of 13 races he ran last year and in his only two starts of the 1975 season, he has a win at Indianapolis and a second in the California 500. He is 100 points in front of another veteran, A.J. Foyt, in the run for the Triple Crown.

Although original plans called for Bobby to run only the three 500-mile races during the current season, car owner Dan Gurney said after the Indy win that the team would try to repeat as USAC champion. Bobby also won the title in 1968.

While the 2.5-mile Pocono TriOval has not been kind to Unser in the past — he was ninth in 1971, twentieth in 1972 and tenth in 1973 — he likes racing on it. "Some of the best races we have each year come at Pocono," he said. "Just look at the way they have finished."

Bobby has picked up $41,196 in Schaefer 500 races, a mere pittance compared to the check he could get by winning the race this year. A victory would certainly soothe any past frustrations he may have had.

Tickets for the Schaefer 500 at Pocono can be purchased at any Ticketron outlet.

Raceway traffic plan

DUNMORE — Major Han-kinson, who heads the Pennsylvania state police in the Pocono Raceway area together with his staff, has devised a new traffic pattern which raceway officials feel will improve traffic flow into and out of the raceway during the running of the 5th annual Schaefer 500, on Sunday.

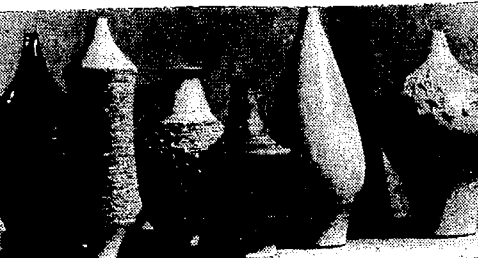

The new plan will allow two lanes south on Rte. 115 to the track, and two lanes north on Rte. 115 to the track.

This new plan should decrease by 50 per cent the time required to enter and exit the racing facilities. The major points in the plan are:

1. The new pattern will begin at 8 a.m. race day, Sunday.
2. Rte. 115 starting at Exit 43 of Interstate 80 will be one way south to the raceway entrance.
3. All traffic on Rte. 115 will be one way north from the foot of Effort Mt. at the intersection of the Jonal-McMichael's Road to the raceway.
4. At lap 170 of the race, the traffic pattern will reverse itself and all traffic exiting the track will have to leave exactly the same way in which it arrived. i.e. Rte. 115 will be one way north to Interstate 80, and Rte. 115 will be one way south to the foot of Effort Mt.

Parachutists to perform

LONG POND — The world champion U.S. Army Parachute Team, the "Golden Knights", will demonstrate their free-fall jumping skill prior to the start of the Schaefer 500 at the Pocono International Raceway Sunday.

While maneuvering in free-fall from altitudes of up to 13,000 feet, the "Knights" will plunge earthward at speeds nearing 200 mph before opening their parachutes to glide to a stand-up landing in the demonstration area.

While free-falling, the jumpers will perform various intricate maneuvers visible to spectators by a trail of smoke emitting from smoke grenades clamped to the jumpers' boots.

'South Pacific' to open at Ritz

HAWLEY — When "South Pacific" opens at the Ritz Company Playhouse July 4 for a two-weekend showing, it will bring to the lake area a production called by many critics the aristocrat of all Rodgers and Hammerstein works.

There were many reasons for the regal treatment the play received. The collaboration of the two began in 1943 when they burst on the New York theatrical scene with "Oklahoma" which was to revolutionize the musical stage. Two years later they presented "Carousel," listed by many as more an American opera than a musical and generally considered to be Rodgers' favorite of all their productions.

But both of these were musical adaptations of dramatic works already presented on the New York stage — "Oklahoma" adapted from Lynn Riggs' "Green Grow The Lilacs" and "Carousel" a transference to the United States of Ferenc Molnar's "Liliom." And both productions starred unknowns in the leading roles.

"When "South Pacific" premiered in 1949 the story was different. While based loosely on James Michener's Pulitzer Prize winning "Tales of the South Pacific," the book as written by Oscar Hammerstein II and Joshua Logan was an entirely original concept dealing largely with two love stories, the affection of the French planter, Emile DeSeque for the Navy nurse, Nellie Ferbush and the attraction of the Marine pilot Joe Cable to the native girl, Liat.

And most importantly Rodgers and Hammerstein this time went to two famous names for their leads — Mary Martin, then the darling of the musical stage as Nellie and Ezio Pinza from the Metropolitan Opera Company as DeSeque.

It is typical of the sensitivity and courage of the pair that they dared break with theatrical tradition and center the love interest around the romance between a middle-aged man and an attractive young girl. The results proved their wisdom when they met with critical raves and long lines at the boxoffice which were to result in a near-record 1,928 performances and a coveted Pulitzer Prize at the conclusion of the first season.

This was only the second time in the history of the prestigious awards that a musical production had been honored, the first being "Of Thee I Sing."

If "South Pacific" does nothing else it demonstrates vividly the great versatility of Rodgers' music.

Museum recalls Gap's past glory

By JOE RATTMAN

Pocono Record Reporter

DELAWARE WATER GAP — Crowds once filled Delaware Avenue in that long ago time when steam locomotives left the railroad station and trolleys departed from the Castle Inn Terminal toward Stroudsburg over Godfrey Ridge, or along the narrow road through the Gap past Child's Arbor and the Cold Air Cave.

They came from the city to stay at the hotels and enjoy the mountain scenery. It was the well-to-do, the captains of industry, the entertainers, who came to stay at the Kittatinny Hotel, the Water Gap House, and the dozen other hotels and small resorts in the village.

The village thrived at the turn of the century and on through the 1920s until the Depression, the growth of the automobile and fires at some of the large hotels considered to reduce the Gap to a sleepy little town at the entrance to a slowly growing resort "region."

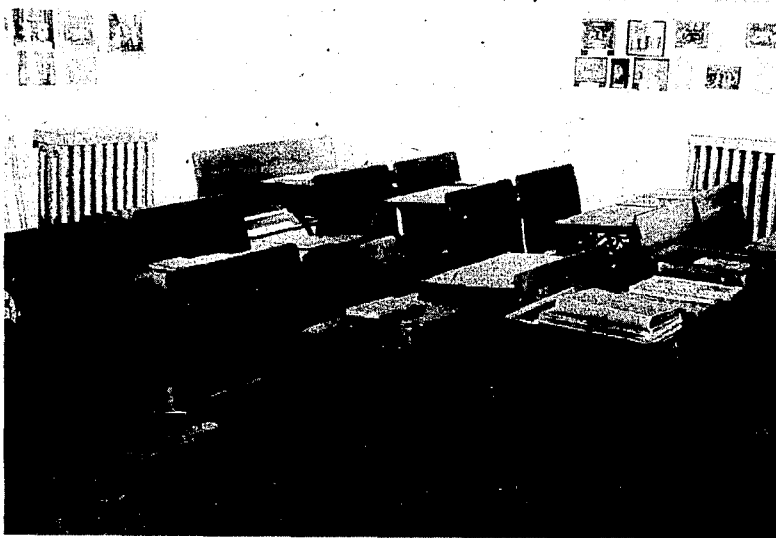

Antoine Dutot, local historian, says, was the first to discover the potential of the Gap when he traveled into the Pennsylvania countryside from Philadelphia on the advice of his friend Stephen Gerard after being forced to give up his Caribbean plantation because of a local uprising.

In 1793, Dutot arrived and began planning his "city," including the construction of a toll road through the Gap, commercial and residential areas and a schoolhouse.

A small brick schoolhouse remains on the land Dutot had deeded in Easton in 1818 to the village, but he did not live to see it. He specified that the land could only be used for educational or religious purposes.

For decades, generations of local children attended the school, attending all 12 grades, but education became modernized and centralized so the four-grade elementary school it eventually became was consolidated with Stroudsburg Area schools and it closed in June, 1969.

Ownership reverted to the village and a committee of townspeople transformed the School days, school days . . . Dutot classroom a relic of the past school into a museum of local resort history.

Most of the hotels in the village have been destroyed by fire, razed for the construction of the Delaware River Toll Bridge or the Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area, or converted into apartment houses. The scenic beauty remains and business is slowly returning, but memories of the bygone era are preserved in the schoolhouse museum.

Named the "Antoine Dutot School and Museum," the schoolhouse exhibits of Delaware Water Gap photographs, post cards, artifacts, furniture and a school bell that remains in service after a century of use.

One of the school rooms has been restored to the way it probably looked 50 years ago, and another large room is used as an art gallery where the work of local artists is shown.

"The Delaware Water Gap was the inception — was the start — of the resort area in the Pocono Mountains. It was the father of the resort business," says Duane Walck, curator.

"It was one of the three foremost resort areas in the country," Walck said. In 1890, he said, the Gap was a top vacation spot along with Cape May, N.J. and Saratoga Springs, N.Y.

An 11-minute slide show, "Once Upon the Delaware," is run for museum visitors. Photographed by Walck and narrated by Robert Brooks, the show details the history of the Gap.

One of the hotels shown, the Water Gap House, had 400 rooms and wide verandas with views of the valley below its mountainside location near Lake Lenape. It was surrounded by a park with nature trails that traversed Mt. Minsi.

Below, on the riverside, was the Kittatinny Hotel with a huge water fountain in front. Guests at those hotels, neither of which remain, included President Theodore Roosevelt and oil baron John D. Rockefeller.

All that remains of that era now is captured in art, photography and architecture. An exhibition of Gap paintings is being featured at a six-week show at the Corcoran Gallery of Art in Washington beginning July 11.

At the Dutot Museum, the summer series of art exhibitions opens today. Paintings and prints by local artists Elinora Hauser and Nancy Hebard will be shown through July 20.

The museum on Main Street, is open Saturdays and Sundays from 1 to 5 p.m. Admission is 50 cents.

The primitive type painting of Herbert Buzzard, who is a Gap resident, will be shown July 26 through August 10.

Carol Vitale, of R.D. 1, Stroudsburg, will show her work August 16 to August 31 and several local artists and craftsmen will be exhibiting and selling their work on the first two weekends in September.

A show of paintings by Bob Doney will be held September 20 through October 12. On the weekends dates of October 11, 12, 18 and 19, the annual Flaming Foliage Outdoor Art show is scheduled. The event always attracts many artists, who set up along Main Street, around the museum and in the triangle in front of the Deerhead Inn.

Tom Sneva's amazing recovery adds glitter to '500'

LONG POND (UPI) — A mile of courage stretches from the fourth row of the starting grid today when Tom Sneva, his body still bearing the shock of burns suffered in last month's Indianapolis classic, guns off at the green flag in the fifth annual Pocono 500 mile auto race.

Sneva suffered first, second and third degree burns over 15 per cent of his skin in a fireball crash and observers still are puzzled over his rapid recovery.

"People see me walking around and they look at me dumbfounded," says the former junior high school administrator. "Occasionally, it's difficult for me to believe that five weeks ago I was receiving getwell greetings in Methodist Hospital in Indianapolis."

Sneva clocked 178.456 miles an hour in a Norton Spirit during qualifications for this final race in the United States Auto Club 500 series. His chances of winning this big race, however, appear slim in light of the duel between Bobby Unser and A.J. Foyt for mastery of the road.

Foyt won the opening round of the series last March at Ontario, Calif., when he beat Bobby in the California 500. The Texan thereby became the first driver to win the USAC triple crown, albeit the triumphs were achieved in different years. Foyt captured Indy three times and won Pocono two years ago when Roger McCluskey ran out of fuel on the last lap.

Bobby Unser took this year's rain-shortened Indianapolis 500 and is anxious to retain his new supremacy over an all-star field of drivers.

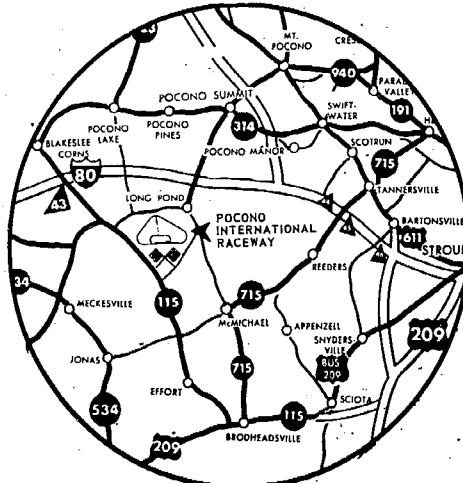

Foyt enjoys a slight advantage as he sits alongside pole winner Gordon Johncock on the starting line. Jerry Grant is the other front row occupant.

Unser, who clocked 181.708 mph to Foyt's 182.778 in the qualifying round, is in the second row with defending Pocono champion Johnny Rutherford and Wally Dallenbach, who thought he had Indy locked up with a 21 second lead and in the late stages only to withdraw with a worn piston.

At stake in the $400,000 race on the 2.5-mile paved trioval at Pocono International Raceway is the USAC point lead on the championship trail. Foyt currently leads with 2,810 points, Unser is second with 2,070. The winner will earn 1,000 points.

Mark Donohue won the inaugural Pocono 500 in 1971

Backroads and the raceway and earned a purse of $87,874. Joe Leonard collected $80,280 for winning in 1972. Foyt took down a record $94,808 in 1973 and Rutherford received $92,625 last year.

There is talk that Mario Andretti has put all his efforts into winning this race, forsaking the Dutch Grand Prix and perhaps the Formula One tour for the rest of the year to reestablish himself in USAC circles as a class Indy driver.

Mario starts Sunday's race from the fourth row with Sneva and Bobby Allison, who had a brief fling at glory in Indianapolis when he led the 1975 race for a single lap.

Johncock, 1973 Indy winner and a hero here during a previous Pocono 500 run when he lost a wheel and maintained perfect control of his machine as cars hitting speeds of 200 miles in the straightaway passed him safely, is confident he can lead this race at the finish. He was in front for the first eight laps at Indy and then pitted permanently with mechanical problems.

Flower maker finds it's nice to fool Mother Nature

CANADENSIS — Inside and away from the forested lands of Canadensis is an unreal forest that looks like its natural counterpart. The wood of the trees is genuine but the foliage is artificial and the rocks are made of paper mache.

The forest display, complete with wildlife and a waterfall, is at "It's Unreal," a floral shop with the largest selection of unreal flowers in the Poconos.

"This unreal forest is our main attraction," said Ruth Burgdorf, the owner. She arranges natural settings in hotel lobbies and in restaurants using combinations of artificial plants and flowers with real tree branches.

In many cases, a close inspection is necessary before it can be seen that the plants are artificial. The techniques of manufacturing artificial flowers have improved tremendously in the last few years so the flowers look more real now than those made in the past, said employee Donald Smith.

Burgdorf has created artificial floral displays or outdoor artificial landscaping for Pocono resorts and restaurants including Split Rock Lodge, Pine Knob Inn, Johnnies Pocono Summit Inn, Blakeslee Inn, the Alternative Restaurant, and the Tinker Hollow ale house. She also decorated the student commons at Pocono Mountain High School with artificial plants.

Real flowers and plants often do not last long in public places, Burgdorf said, because of such factors as air conditioning, poor lighting and damage from handling.

"People have a tendency to go up and pull at a leaf," she said. "Maintenance is very expensive."

In outdoor situations, artificial floral displays and landscaping is sometimes the only means of decorating a location where nothing will grow. Maintenance and care is not needed and artificial plants will hide such things as air conditioning units, Burgdorf said.

"Never again do you have to cut or spray, prune, or worry about a plant dying," Burgdorf said.

The flowers sold at It's Unreal are made from silk, "magic silk," plastic, patent leather or they are real flowers that have been dried. Very few are made in the United States. Most are imported from Hong Kong and Taiwan. Some better, more expensive artificial flowers are imported from France and Sapin, Burgdorf said.

"Most flower shops carry a limited line of this stuff, but nothing to the extent that we have," Smith said. He does most of the floral arrangements.

Arranging artificial flowers is a little easier than arranging real ones, Smith said, because no provision need be made for supplying the plants with water.

Plastic or magic silk flowers can be washed and will last indefinitely. Dried flowers are good for two or three years. Artificial flowers cost about the same as real flowers and are less costly to use than real flowers because cut flowers soon wilt and have to be replaced.

"We try primarily to keep flowers that grow in the area," Burgdorf said. A large variety of flowers, all artificial, are displayed in the store, Burgdorf buys artificial plant parts and makes her own flowers, plants and trees.

"Almost everything here is original," she said. For example, she takes branches of a manzanita tree, drills holes in them and fastens foliage. The tree is potted, plastic lemons are fastened and the result is what looks like a small lemon tree.

It's Unreal sells hanging baskets of flowers, gifts and puzzles. Customers can bring in their own baskets, bowls or vases and get artificial flowers arranged in them.

The shop is on Rte. 390 just north of the traffic light in Canadensis. It was previously in Mountainhome but moved to the present location a year ago.

IMITATING NATURE — Donald Smith, employee at 'It's Unreal,' works with nimble fingers to create artificial flowers to rival the real thing in looks, if not fragrance.

MANMADE GARDEN — 'It's Unreal' showroom is chock-a-block full of plastic flowers which haven't got the delicacy of the real thing, but have the looks and a far greater coefficient of permanence. Collection features plant types that grow in the area.

Apple Valley Village has a little bit of everything

By JOE RATTMAN

Pocono Record Reporter

MILFORD — Apple Valley Village is an unusual assemblage of shops where you could spend an entire afternoon browsing, seeing glass blowing and pottery making, and dining.

The restaurant, which has three dining rooms and a cocktail lounge, serves a varied menu including seafood. It is decorated with barn siding and antiques.

Several small shops adjoin the restaurant, including separate shops that sell candy, pottery, crafts, glass, souvenirs and antiques. Cabins that appear to have once been part of a motel have been connected to house the string of shops.

The candy shop sells more than candy. It also has Pennsylvania Dutch cookies, jams and berry syrups.

Next door at the glass shop, more than 250 different items of hand blown and sculptured glass ware are made in the workshop. Owner Andy Ziegler, 49, has been working with glass for 37 years. He started at age 12 and said that the art takes a long time to learn.

"This has been a family tradition for over 300 years," he said, as he heated a tube of glass while holding it in the flame of eight propane burners.

Zeigler learned the trade from his father, who immigrated to America from the Black Forest region of Germany. Zeigler, in turn, taught the trade to his two sons when they were ages 9 and 12 respectively. They occasionally work with Zeigler in his shop when they are in Milford.

The younger you are when you start, the better glass blower you will become, Zeigler said. Three main types of glass are used, lead crystal, boracicate crystal and standard flint.

Zeigler can make a large dinner bell with an intricate design combining several colors of glass in about 20 minutes.

"It's all done free hand. There are no tools or calipers used," Zeigler said. He uses only a heat source, his hands, and of course, his wind.

Propane mixed with air is the fuel used for most of the work but for some types of glass, oxygen is substituted. Zeigler said he is one of three persons in the country who are making glass flowers of lead crystal with a colored glass overlay.

The type of work he does is either spinning, sculpturing or blowing. He starts with either rods of glass or tubing. Some of the glass is not available in the United States so he imports it from Germany, France, Belgium or Italy.

Every piece of glass sold in the shop is individually crafted. No two pieces are exactly alike. Zeigler said he rarely tires of his work.

"Sometimes I come in here at 6 o'clock in the morning and I work to six or seven at night," he said. And he never gets cut or burned from the glass anymore, he said.

"After 37 years you know just what to touch and what not to touch," Zeigler said. He works all year so that he has enough glassware made for the summer when it sometimes sells faster than he can make it.

Among the items he makes are spun glass ships, small animal figures and vases. He also makes swans that are filled with colored water.

At the craft shop, owners Jean Turfler and Louise Briard teach their customers how to cut and decorate large eggs to make knickknacks, Christmas decorations and even jewelry boxes. They display finished crafts, sell the materials needed to make them and explain the procedure to be used. The two travel frequently to craft shows to get new ideas.

The antique shop at Apple Valley, "Ross's Antiques," is typical because it sells salt and pepper shaker tops to antique buffs who have the century old bases but lack the tops, which are often missing because the metals used to manufacture them reacts with the salt and cause deterioration.

Robert Ross, the owner, bought the original dyes that were used to cast the tops during the 1870's. He has 24 dyes, all at least 80 years old.

"We have people who come from all over the United States here to get those tops, believe it or not," Ross said. He advertises the tops in antique and home furnishings magazines.

The store carries a general line of antiques, mostly acquired through estate settlements. All sorts of furniture and china are sold but the thing that distinguishes the store is the antique shaker tops. Ross duplicates the same old process used originally.

"We use various metals. We use hot tipped tin plates, which was the same metal used in 1870," Ross said.

The tops are available in silver plate or in brass and they can be bought looking new or Ross will distress them to make them look authentically antique.

Ross sought to demonstrate the authenticity of the dyes by pointing out that the perforations of the shaker tops are larger than those made in contemporary tops because the salt formerly sold is much coarser than that marketed today.

"This shop has become known coast to coast mainly on account of those caps," Ross said. He picked up a pile of mail and thumbed through letters postmarked in several states from persons wanting the caps. "There's not a state in the union that we haven't shipped to," Ross said.

Ross does not refinish furniture, as do many antique dealers but he does repair cut glass using a grinding wheel. It is possible to remove slight chips completely using the wheel, he said.

Most of the merchandise in the shop though is sold just as it was made many decades ago.

Book expert finds many old, few valuable tomes

By JOE RATTMAN

Pocono Record Reporter

BARTONSVILLE — The dusty attics of old homes in the Poconos are often filled with junk, sometimes a box of old books and rarely some valuable antiques.

Treasure hunting home owners often call book appraiser Val D. Robbins, hoping that their attic stash of old volumes has value.

Unfortunately, they are usually wrong. It's more of a nuisance than anything else to go through the generally worthless books, so Robbins stopped giving free appraisals. In the past, Robbins has, however, bought as many as 2,000 books out of attics.

He goes through all the cartons looking for books of value but most of the books are usually worthless. So he burns them or sends them to auction, where they bring $1 a box.

"I have burned many and I know a guy that heats his house with books," Robbins said. The man is another book dealer.

"You can't keep them all," he continued. "They have no other value. They are cheaper than coal."

Many books that are very old, even centuries, such as some 15th century Bibles are worth very little, Robbins said. The reason the Bibles bring so little at auction is that a large number of Bibles were printed at the time, he said.

"Now you are talking about books that are four centuries old and have little value," Robbins said.

Several factors influence the value of an old book. The most valuable books are often signed first editions, Robbins said. Some books are made valuable only by their illustrations, he said.

"Books fluctuate with the market quite a bit," Robbins said. The recession has affected the book market, he said.

Books that are not extremely rare are down in price right now, he said. However, he added, "The really fine rare book in good condition is worth a lot of money."

The difference in value of first and second editions may be several hundred dollars. Later editions may bring less at auction but the order of publication does not mean everything.

Robbins illustrated the differences. The first authorized edition of "Alice in Wonderland" by Lewis Carroll was published in 1866 and is worth $200, but the first American printing is worth only $40 and copies published shortly later are worth $7.50.

Book catalogs list prices for more than 50 different printings of the book, ranging from $5 to $350 and one of the most valuable editions was published in 1935.

A book is appraised by determining the amounts the book is selling for in several different places and taking an average. Local interest in books can force up values. For example, books of local history are worth more here. Dealers always try to buy those types of books from outside their area.

People are seeking to buy historical books more now because of the bi-centennial, Robbins said. Customers usually buy books according to their reading interests, he said.

"I have very few investment buyers. They buy because they like a certain author," Robbins said. They seek out all the works of their favorite author, he said, and try to upgrade their collections with books in the best condition and the best edition that they can find.

Other customers collect books with very fine bindings. For some, the purpose of buying certain volumes is their attractiveness when displayed on a shelf. Robbins has a personal collection of books with fine bindings.

His primary personal interest is in good old photographs. But Robbins has collected historical documents and about 800 or 900 books.

"I've got enough put away for myself that I couldn't read it all if I live to be 1,000," Robbins said. "My father always had a big library of his own and I've always liked books," he said.

Robbins has been in business for about 12 years but it's really more like a hobby. Buying and selling through the mail really is not practical, Robbins said.

"You study for years trying to learn all this," Robbins said. He has books up to 350 years old, a barn filled with more than 6,000 books, cartons of old photographs and correspondence and a deep curiosity about history.

Dealing in old books is a very specialized and time consuming business, Robbins said. Little money can be made locally appraising books, he said.

ABOUT AN EPICUREAN SAFARI . . .

Dining at "Selecta," 6 miles south of Stroudsburg, is like going to a private party abroad. The yellow sign on Rt. 191 reads only: "SELECTA (215) 588-1042 Rijsttafel." A shale driveway leads through woods to a field-stone mansion, the parking lot studded with out-of-state cars.

The host, a spice-importer from Java, introduces the gourmets in the oak-beamed Rattan Bar: Except for stubborn martini-drinkers, most enjoy the "Selecta," exotic-blue House Specialty. The restaurant features an authentic Indonesian Riceable buffet on Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings, by reservation only. Other cuisine may be ordered ahead. Private parties of 8 or more on other days. Phone for mailing of information/menu card.

the friendly store

We're 100 Years Old! Join our Year-Long Birthday Party . . .

While you are enjoying your visit to the beautiful Pocono Mountains, visit Wyckoff's where you'll find the very best in famous brand merchandise for the whole family. If you've visited us before you'll be very pleasantly surprised to find our exciting recent additions. We'll be celebrating our birthday all year long, so come join the excitement. You'll find best in linens, fabrics, housewares and notions for all your sewing needs on our lower level. You'll find exotic one-of-a-kind gifts in our unique Around-the-World Gift Center. Enjoy a break in your shopping with a snack in our tearoom or at the fountain. You'll find fashions for the whole family on our main and second floors. Wyckoff's is truly a shopper's delight and brimming with special excitement this year. Come see us soon.

BRAND NEW! COUNTRY STORE AND MUSEUM

A bit of yesteryear has come to life at Wyckoff's in what was once a livery stable. Wyckoff's has faithfully and professionally created a General Store with all of its charm and authenticity. And old post office, patent medicine counter, pot belly stove and the hundreds of other items in the country store museum are a reminder that the community centered in the country store. Everyone is cordially invited to visit the old store at no charge. It seems to say, "Come in and imagine yourself as a shopkeeper, postmaster, shopper or loafer in the pre-macadam days. Hitch up and drive in at your leisure.

BRAND NEW! PLAZA SHOP HOME CENTER

Our Plaza Shop, with entrances on Sixth Street and Quaker Plaza, has been completely transformed into a beautiful Home Furnishing Center with many departments from our Lower Level and many brand new departments. You'll find the best in redwood and wrought iron outdoor furniture, unpainted furniture, lamps, major appliances, draperies, stereos, cameras and a snack counter where you can have a delicious sandwich and a cold drink or an ice cream cone that still only costs 10¢. Wyckoff's expresses its confidence in the continued development of the Poconos by expanding into a new home center to better serve the needs of our customers. Visit us today!
